My dear Sir.

Your kind letter was forwarded on to me here, as both my wife & I felt that a change might do us good after the sad illness of my dear father, for he spent the last three months of his life with us. He was quite bedridden & for the last month was always wandering, so it seemed a happy release for him to leave us, although to me it was most sad, to see him so helpless & know I could do nothing for him, but only wait.

He seemed to gradually lost interest in all his old hobbies. occasionally

I coaxed some him a little to see a boneplate or to talk a little about archaeology. but this was only very seldom.
I do not know whether anyone will take the trouble to write of his Career, for me I am grieved to say now. That I never took any interest in his works. as my tastes were not in the same groove. but still I always admired his knowledge & always was proud to know that he was my father. now that he is gone it seems as if the link had been snapped. I can hardly realise how much I loved & venerated him. & it is only when I have

So many kind & sympathising letters. That I appreciate how much he was valued.

I have known you by name for years, but of course have had no correspondance with you. & am sorry now that it is on so sorrowful a subject that I have to write.

My father has left instructions in his will for all his books to be disposed of, when this is to be I do not know, & it is a proceeding I deeply regret, as I look upon them as representing my father's life. However such is his wish & it must be carried out.

Thanking you again for your very kind letter.
Believe me

Yours Very Truly

PREFATORY NOTE.

IN completing the Fourth Volume of the Third Series the EDITOR has again the pleasure of thanking the Patrons and Subscribers of the MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA for the support given to the Magazine, and also the various Contributors whose Papers he has been enabled to publish. The Registers of Marriages at Maidstone were closed at the year 1754, having run through three Volumes.

To LORD HAWKESBURY he is indebted for the Pedigree of the Family of Hobson of York in 1675; and to SIR GEORGE ARMYTAGE, Bart., F.S.A., for the tablet commemorating the death of Maria Armytage, sister of Sir Thomas Armytage, the sixth Baronet in 1736, when the title of 1641 became extinct. To Mr. C. E. COKAYNE, Clarenceux King-of-Arms, F.S.A., he is also much indebted for various Family Histories. The Compilers of the entries of Wandsworth Marriages, and of the Monumental Inscriptions in St. Marylebone Parish Church, have also largely contributed to the pages of the Magazine; and to various other Contributors he is indebted for interesting subjects, notably the account of the predecessors of Walter Savage Landor from 1575.

The EDITOR trusts to his able Contributors still to favour him with papers on family histories, antique bookplates, etc., and any other matter of an interesting genealogical nature. On account of declining health he hopes to be assisted by the kind co-operation of Mr. W. BRUCE BANNERMAN, F.S.A., the Treasurer of the Harleian Society, in the next volume, which will be the Fifth Volume of the Third Series.

The Right Noble Thomas Duke of Leeds, Marquis of Carmarthen, Earl of Danby, Viscount Latimer & Dumblan, Baron Osborne of Kiveton and Knight of ỹ most Noble Order of ỹ Garter. 1701

Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica.

Arms of Thomas (Osborne), Duke of Leeds, etc.*

(See Plate.)

THIS achievement is supposed to be the bookplate of the first Duke of Leeds. The date, "1701," makes that surmise more probable, as since his elevation to the Dukedom, in 1694,† till his death, in 1712, he held no important office, received no fresh honours, and was practically a nonentity. The families represented by these quarterings are :—(1) OSBORNE ; (2) BROUGHTON ; (3) either another coat of BROUGHTON, or else some quartering brought in by that family ;‡ (4) HEWITT ; (5) HEWITT, another coat ; (6) WALMESLEY ; (7) DANVERS ; (8) NEVILL. The fifth and all the succeeding quarterings are impudent assumptions on the part of his Grace, doubtless with a view, as respects the last three, to thus set forth (though without any right so to do) his descent (a descent without any representation) from the great houses of Nevill and Danvers.

The fifth quarter is the coat of a family of Hewett, or Heuitt, from which Lord Mayor Hewitt, who was his Grace's ancestor, had no descent. With respect to the sixth, seventh, and eighth quarters, i.e., those of Walmesley, Danvers, and Nevill, it may be remarked that the first English Peerage obtained by the Duke was the VISCOUNTCY OF LATIMER in 1673, the Barony of Latimer having been in the NEVILL family from 1404 to 1577 ; and that when in the next year he obtained an Earldom it was that of DANBY, the Earldom of Danby having from 1626 to 1644 been in the family of DANVERS. The powerful interest of the grantee, though sufficient to raise himself from a commoner to a dukedom, and to obtain de novo titles which he in no way represented, cannot, however, alter the laws of heraldry and give him a right to bear the arms of Danvers and Nevill, being those of the Peers above named. This right did not even belong to the family of Walmesley, through whom the Duke claimed it, on the ground of his father Sir Edward Osborne, Bart., having married Anne, youngest child of Thomas Walmesley, by Eleanor, da. of Sir John Danvers and Elizabeth his wife, da. and coheir of John (Nevill), Lord Latimer. The said Anne Osborne, formerly Walmesley, had, however, a brother, Sir Thomas Walmesley, who left issue, which issue (not the issue of his sister) represents this line of Walmesley ; and the said Eleanor Walmesley, formerly Danvers, had a brother, Sir John Danvers, whose issue (not the issue of his sister) represents this line of Danvers, and are (which the Walmesleys and, a fortiori, the Osbornes are not) coheirs to the family of Nevill, Lords Latimer, and of Danvers, Earl of Danby. (See "Complete Peerage," by G. E. C., vol. v., p. 35, and see also an admirable tabular pedigree of Danvers and Nevill in Baker's "Northamptonshire," vol. i., p. 444.)

† This is one of the nine English Dukedoms conferred in five years' time (1689—1694) by William III., viz. : (1) Cumberland ; (2) Bolton ; (3) Schomberg ; (4) Gloucester ; (5) Shrewsbury ; (6) Leeds ;* (7) Bedford ;* (8) Devonshire ;* (9) Newcastle, of which the three marked with an asterisk are still extant.

‡ The arms in this quarter (Argent, a chevron vert between three annulets gules) are not apparently attributed in any of the older records to any family of Broughton. The mother, grandmother, or any other female ancestor of Joan Broughton, who married Richard Osborne, are unknown. She was sister and heir of Edward, son of John, who was brother of Sir Thomas Broughton, Knt., both being sons of Thomas Broughton, of Broughton, co. Westmorland. (Vinc. 119, fo. 504, Coll. of Arms.) The quartering has been attributed to the name of Singleturne (see text), but no descent from any such family (even if it is a coat of Singleton or Singleturne) is suggested.

The eight quarterings appear (together with the coat of Hyde in the ninth quarter, and that of Osborne repeated in the tenth) in Edmondson's "Baronagium" (1764—84), under 'Leeds.' With respect to the second quarter, as also to the third, they are allowed (no names being given them) as quarterings belonging to the coat of Osborne in the "Visitation of London, 1568," the whole impaling the coat of Hewitt. In the "Visitation of Bedfordshire, 1634," as published by the Harleian Society, they also appear as the second and third quarterings of Osborne (the fourth quartering being that of Hewitt), but in that case the names assigned to them (probably in error) are ETTON (apparently a mistake for BROUGHTON) and SINGLETURNE. They are allowed (no names being given) to his Grace, when Earl of Danby, in Sir Edward Walker's "Nobility, temp. Car. II." (a book of fairly good authority), as also (together with the coat of Hewitt as a fourth quartering) in his Garter Plate, dated 1677.

NOTES.

Note 1. The earliest mention of Fenottery in relation to this family is in "Testa de Nevill," where both Philip and John are given as holding it in chief. The former (p. 194, fo. 836), "tenet Fenotry cum pertinenciis de domino Rege per iiij^{l} iiij^{s} viii^{d} per annum, et respondet in quadam firma novo de dono Henrici regis primi antecessoribus suis per idem serviciam." It is therefore held by two grants, the later being as early as Henry I. In another place (p. 196, fo. 847) he is said to hold it "ad feodi firmam," and John's tenancy is given (p. 191, fo. 826) as "one hide of land held in socage." The payment of £4 4s. 8d. is made to the sheriffs, and appears constantly in their accounts as rendered in the Pipe Rolls; sometimes also account is rendered of a payment (e.g., 1 mark in 14 Henry II., 1167-8) in respect of the "men of Fenotri." In an inquisition of 1299 (Harl. 6126, fo. 396) it is stated to be worth by the year £4 13s. 8d. clear; in one of 1332 (ibid., fo. 5) it is stated to be worth by the year £4 15s. 4d.; in another of 1343 (Record Office) it is only reckoned as worth forty shillings beyond the rent to the king. It is also called "Fenotery Hamlet," and is situate in the Hundred of Budleigh. Pole (p. 483) gives the arms of Furneaux of Fenottery as "Argent, a bend between six crosslets gules."

Note 2. Galfridus or Gaufridus (Geoffry) de Furnellis was Sheriff of Devon and Cornwall in 31 Henry I., 1131 (31st Public Record Report, 1870). The lists in Pole, Risdon, and Izaacke place his shrievalty (of Devon) in 1 Henry II. (1154), stated to be the first after the abolition of the hereditary shrievalty. The Pipe Roll in which he renders account (edit. Hunter, 1833) was formerly taken to be dated in that year. Risdon ("Note-Book," p. 126) notes him among nobles and knights of Devon in Stephen's time. Izaacke says he bore "Argent, a bend between six martlets gules" (see Somerset Branch, note 2). He is witness to a deed of gift (in or before 1146) by Baldwin de Rivers, Earl of Devon, founding the priory of St. James, near Exeter (Dugdale, v., 106^{a}), and to another charter of the same Baldwin respecting lands in Isle of Wight (ibid., vi., 1041^{a}).

Note 3. This Philip is only known as witness to two deeds:—(1), dated 1146, a confirmation by Robert (Chichester, 1138—1155), Bishop of Exeter, of the above gift by Baldwin, Earl of Exeter, to priory of St. James; (2), dated 1157, a deed by Richard, son of the above Baldwin, confirming the same. He might be a son of Galfride, as Alan certainly had brothers.

Note 4. That Alan de Furnellis was son of Galfride is made very probable by the alternation of another Galfride and another Alan afterwards. The records give him as Vice-Sheriff of Devon (for "comes Reginaldus") in 21 Henry II., 1175. Izaacke gives him as sheriff part of that year, and assigns to him the same arms as to Galfride (see Note 2); Pole and Risdon omit him. The records also make him Sheriff of Cornwall for five and a half years in succession, 26—31 Henry II., 1180—1185. Risdon misdates this shrievalty, confusing it with that of Henry Furnellis (Somerset Branch, note 2). The Cartulary of St. Nicolas, Exeter (printed in "Collectanea Topographica et Genealogica," i., p. 65, No. 62), shews a convention between him and the prior, "Super decimis molendini de Columpton datis Priori de St Nich. pro animis patris et matris eius [sc. Alani] et fratrum et uxoris et puerorum suorum et dominorum Baldwini et Ricardi de Rivers. Test. Barthol. Episcopo Exon. [1161—1184], Rob. Archid. Totoniæ, Ricardo priore de Oteri." The names of his brothers, etc., are not given. He is also witness (with Richard and Simon Peverel) to a charter of the same bishop confirming a gift to the same priory by Brian de Buterlegh (ibid., p. 63, No. 43), and to a gift to the Abbey of Tavistock (Dugdale, M., ii., 499^{b}). Pole (p. 13) states that he held, early in the time of Henry II., half a fee of the honor of Barnstaple under William Tracy. He also held in the same reign one fee of the Lord of Exeter (Dugdale, M., ii., 534^{a}), and two charters by him were preserved in the treasury of Bishop Bronescombe (Register, by Hingeston-Randolph, pp. 292, 293), one of them relating to a garden in the parish of St. Sidwell (S. Sativole), Exeter. His father's death and his own succession to estates appear to date from 12 Henry II., 1165, when he is returned in the Pipe Roll as owing 100 marks "pro fine terræ." Of this sum 40 marks appear to be remitted, and the remainder are paid in annual instalments appearing up to the date of his death. Also from 15 Henry II., 1169, to his death, he renders account in respect of a tin mine ("minaria staminis," or "stagni") in Devon, paying sometimes large sums (as £45 in one year). In his later years he appears to have been one of the King's permanent justiciaries, holding assize in various counties. He is one of five at an assize at Doncaster (Ranulph de Glanvill, the Chief Justice of England, being first) before whom Roger de Clare makes a gift to Rievaulx Abbey (Dugdale, M., v., 282[b]), and in the Pipe Roll, 1 Richard I., 1189 (edit. Hunter, 1844), the Sheriff's accounts for the counties of Lincoln and Warwick have entries "de pla'e. Alani de Furnellis et sociorum eidem" (see also Oxfordshire). The same Pipe Roll (p. 131) proves his death, "Alanus de Furnellis deb. iiii[li] pro fine terre sue, sed mortuus est."

Note 5. This Galfride renders account for his father in Pipe Roll, 1 Richard I., respecting what appear to be judicial sums in Oxfordshire (pp. 105—107), and also in Devon respecting the tin mine (see above, Note 4), and for this again in Chancery Roll, 3 John, 1202 (edit. 1833, p. 17). In this same year, at the King's Court at Exeter, an agreement is made between him and Hugo Peverel (Ped. Finium, edit. Hunter, 1844, vol. ii.). The Cartulary of St. Nicolas (see above, Note 4) has the following deeds, shewing his land and relationships (ii., p. 65, No. 63): "C Galfridi de Furnellis de tercia parte decimarum de Niewelande quam pater meus Alanus dedit Radulpho presbiter'o. Testibus Philippo fratre meo," etc. (2) No. 64: "C inter Priorem de S. Nich. Exon. et Galfridum de Furnellis, de aqua quæ venit de Kentelesbar' per Waterledam quæ transit per Kentelesmore usque Niewelande. Testibus . . . . Alano filio Galfridi de Furnellis." (3) Page 382, No. 348: "C inter Henr' filium Will. de Kentelisbeare et Galfrid. de Furnellis de aqua quæ dicitur Kentelisbrock et Waterleda, quæ vadit de Kentelisbere usque ad Niewelande." In another of the deeds (p. 64, No. 33) "Gosfridus [? Gaufridus] de Furnellis et Philippus filius eius" appear (with three of the Peverel family) as witnesses to a gift by Matilda Peverel.

Note 6. Pole (p. 49) gives Alan de Furneaux of Kentisbeare, near Collumpton, Knight, as one of the tenants in chief under Henry III., and says (p. 183; see also Risdon, "Survey," p. 129) that one moiety of that manor belonged first unto the ancestors of Sir Alan de Furneaux, and after, successively, to Henry FitzHenry, Manger FitzHenry, and Henry FitzManger, and in 19 Edward III. to Hugh Courtenay, Earl of Devon. Risdon ("Note-Book," p. 159) gives him at the same date, and (p. 252) assigns to him (by error under Somersetshire) arms, "A bend between six crosses-crosslet." As regards his daughters, Matilda and her marriage and issue are given from the Heralds' College as from the "Visitation of Devon" (C. 1, 38[b]). Dr. Colby ("Visitation of Devon," 1564, p. 162), who gives her only as ". . . . d. and h. of Furneaux," gives the further issue (pedigree of Moore of Moorehayes, near Collumpton). Mabila and her marriage are also given from the Heralds' College as from Philipot, No. 141, p. 2, and her issue are shewn in the pedigree of Maunsell of Maunsel in Hundred of North Petherton, Somerset ("Visitation of Somerset," 1531 and 1573, by F. W. Weaver, p. 48). The third daughter is given from a "probatio ætatis" "placita coram Rege," 25 Edward I., 1297 (pub. 1897), in which the witness remembers the year of the person's birth, twenty-one years ago (or more), as that in which he "desponsavit Joannam filiam Alani de Furneaus equitis, quam antea per tempus aliquod adamaverat."

Note 7. This Philip, brother of Galfride (see Note 5), might possibly be the Philip de Furneaus, witness to a charter by William de Buivere to Mol'isfont, Hants, dated by Tanner in the time of John (Dugdale, M., vi., 481[b]).

Note 8. In "Testa de Nevill" (time of Henry III. and Edward I.) it is said (p. 181, fo. 790), "Phu's de Furnellis tenet in Suthwod et Nieweland di. f."; also (p. 194, fo. 836), "Phu's de Fornell tenet Fenotri," or "villam de Fenotery" (p. 196, fo. 847), the particulars of his tenancy being those quoted in Note 1. The mention of Newland makes for his identity with the Philip, son of Galfride (Note 5), and the mention of Fenotery suggests that his father and grandfather also held that manor. It appears not to have been held by Alan (No. 7), as it did not pass to his daughters, as the Kentisbeare and other Collumpton lands (except Newland) probably did.

Note 9. John is also given in "Testa de Nevill" (p. 191, fo. 826) as tenant in chief at Fenotery of one hide of land (see Note 1). In the "Excerpta e Rotulis Finium in turre Londinensi" (edit. 1835, i., p. 275) we find that in 1235 John de Furnellis, son and heir of Philip, paid a fine of 100 shillings, and that the king received his homage and directed the sheriff to deliver seisin to him of all the lands held by his said father. He is probably the same John who gave in 1259 land in Tidehill and Morecombe, in the parish of Fenottery, to the church of St. Michael for a chaplain to say Divine Service, also a furlong of land which was once a sanctuary, with the advowson of the chapel of Fenottery (Risdon, "Survey," p. 79). Lysons ("Devon," p. 381) adds that this gift was to the Priory of Otterton, and that Fenottery was formerly a chapel to Harpford.

Note 10. Pole states (p. 186), "Newland was the land of Wm Furneaux in King Ed. I. tyme by the fourth part of a knight's fee." This would shew him to have been a descendant of Philip, but as there is no record of his having had Fenottery, the two estates appear to have become separate.

Note 11. Pole gives another William as holding Newland 19 Edward III. (1346). His identity with the William Forniaux who, with Joan his wife, were benefactors to the Carmelite Friars at Plymouth, is suggested by Oliver's statement ("Mon. Dioc. Exon.," Add. Sapp., p. 16) that the official deed of the prior (November 30th, 1376) is in possession of Mr. Walrond of Bradfield, to whose family (according to Pole) Newland passed from that of Furneaux.

Note 12. "Thomas de Forneaus, Fenhoterhy maner' extent, Devon" (Cal. Inq. p.m. 27 Edward I., vol. i., p. 148^{b}). The tenure in socage, rent to the king, and value of the manor (see Note 1), also his son and heir's name and age (16) are given from Harl. 6126, fo. 39^{b}; also MS. Cal. of Escheats, xix., 69. He must apparently have been son of John, though not stated to be so.

Note 13. "Joh'es de Furneaus Fen Otri maner' extent' de Exon' castro" (Inq. p.m. 1 Edward II., vol. i., p. 226). That his brother Richard was his heir, and aged 15, is given from MS. Cal. of Escheats, xix., 73. His name is given as summoned from Devon with horse and arms to Berwick-upon-Tweed in 29 Edward I., 1301 (Ryley's "Plac. Parl.," p. 493).

Note 14. For Richard's age see Note 13. The inquisition on himself, "Ric'us Furneaux Fenotrye hamlett' Devon," is dated 6 Edward III. (Inq., ii., p. 48^{b}, No. 42). Mandate is given at same date to Henry de Gulden, escheator in Cornwall, to take possession of his lands and tenements (Rot. Orig. Abbrev., ii., 68), and the value of his estate is given (see Note 1), as also the name and age (16) of his son and heir (Harl. 6126, fo. 5). For the name of his wife and her second marriage see next note.

Note 15. The date of John's birth is shewn from his age at his father's death. The other particulars respecting him, his brothers, and his sister are here summed up from three inquisitions in the Record Office—(1), held at Nywelton Popleford respecting John de Forneaux 8 June 16 Edward III., 1343; (2), at the same place respecting Richard de Forneaux 26 June of the following year; (3), an inquiry respecting the heirs of the said John held at Exeter Michaelmas 3 Henry V.,

1416. In these it is stated that in John's minority his mother Muriel and her second husband Henry de Haidon (who married her without the king's licence) sold his custody and marriage for £10 to John de Bocland to the prejudice of the king, and that the said Henry possessed himself (also without the king's licence) in various ways of parcels of the said manor. John, on coming of age, had not done homage to the king for the manor, and in 20 Edward III., 1347, aliened it to his brother Richard and heirs of his body, without the king's licence. John died without issue 18 April 25 Edward III., 1352, and at his death held no lands in Devon of the king, or of any other in demesne or in service. Richard had in 1350 granted the manor to Nicolus de Chylmelegh, and had received it back from him, with remainder, in default of his issue, to his brother William and his issue. Richard and William having both died (dates not given) without issue, the manor passed to Margaret, widow of Richard, who had since married John Payn ; and John and Margaret, in 1364, successfully resisted an action of disseisin brought by Richard Dobell and Agnes his wife, sister of the above three brothers Forneaux. Afterwards the said John and Margaret granted the whole manor, in exchange for lands in Bocland Dynham, Somerset, to Sir John Dynham, Knt., to whom the said Agnes Dobell remitted her rights in 1373, and who died seised of the manor of Fenottery in 1380, and whose son John then (1416) held it. The jurors conclude that John, Richard, William, and Agnes, having all died without issue, they are wholly ignorant who the right heirs of the said John may be. For the name Payn in Somerset see that branch, Notes 6 and 9.

Note 16. "Huge Mewy did Wm Giffard and Richard de Mewry hold, a. 27 Henry III., of Stephan Furneaux." (Pole, p. 338.)

Note 17. Philip de Furnariis was admitted Prior of Modbury, on the presentation of Thomas Champernowne, in April 1362. (Oliver, "Mon. Dioc. Exon.," p. 298.)

Note 18. The will of Thomas Hert, Rector of Gittisham near Ottery, dated 9 May 1407 (Bp. Stafford's Register, edit. Hingeston-Randolph, p. 393), contains a bequest of a heifer worth 6^{s} 8^{d} to Alice, wife of John Forneauxs. The bequest comes amongst others to dependents and servants, and is evidence of the existence of persons of the name in a rank similar to that of the yeomen farmers, etc., with whom the traceable Pedigree of Furneaux in the sixteenth century (see "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," New Series, vol. ii., p. 171) begins.

Note 19. Thomas Furneaux was presented by the Custos and College of St. Mary Ottery to the Vicarage of Ilsington near Chudleigh in 1500 (communicated by Dr. Oliver). The Devon branch, like the Somerset, is then brought down to a time at which such lands as they are known to have held pass out of the family, and the name drops out of the records connected with land tenure. That it was not extinct is shewn here and in Note 18 ; and some landless survivors may well have been the progenitors of those from whom the modern pedigree (see above, Note 18) descends. I may mention for what it is worth that one Christopher Fournes was in favour with Edward IV., and was made by him Ranger of Kingsclere, Controller of Customs at Chichester, Porter of Windsor, etc. (Cal. of Pat. Rolls, 1461, pp. 6, 8). There is nothing to shew that he was a Devon man, but the Devon family keep up that Christian name in the sixteenth century. It should be remembered that besides the Devon branch proper, the Somerset branch (see Somerset Branch, Notes 2, 6, 7) held lands in Devon ; also Risdon says ("Survey," p. 176) that Sir Walter Furneaux (who belongs properly to the Derby branch) was possessed of Hughton and Nether Ansedon, Devon, in Edward I.'s time, and that his son John conveyed the estates to Walter Tantifer. Pole also (p. 52) gives Sir Walter among tenants in chief at that time, and gives arms of Furneaux of Hughton as "Sable, a chief or" (p. 483), and states that Ralph Speccot of Merton married Sara, daughter of Sir Walter and sister and heir of John, and had issue (p. 331).

Reviews.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. X., January 1900. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THE Editor opens the volume by an appeal for more assistance in the preparation of articles, and speaks hopefully of the future. The plate of Mr. A. Wollaston Hutton is given on the third page, and this is followed by three samples of plates by Miss May Fisher, the one of Helen Fisher's being very chaste; there is another good plate given also by a lady, Miss Janie Milne, for Mr. Charles Radford.

The Title, Index, and List of Members are included in the February Part, which has a good article on the Fenwicks, illustrated by three coats of arms, the last of which has the motto in full, "A Fenwyke, A Fenwyke, A Fenwyke," the old rallying-cry of the race against the Scots in their border warfare. Several other Fenwick plates are spoken of by Mr. Bolton, the author of the paper, each of which shews the variations by intermarriages of a "great county family." The article on Urn plates is continued, giving 40 examples, and there are two examples of plates by Mr. F. Carruthers Gould, the one for a Harvard student, Mr. Theodore Tebbetts, who is depicted as a twentieth-century Don Quixote on literary lines intent, and the other for himself, a mailed knight, smoking a cigarette, and being purred at by a black cat, and surrounded by a fox, a jackdaw, and a hare!

In the March Part the bookplate of Lord Ferrers serves as a frontispiece, and there is an article on Swedish Coats, with several samples given; there are also six more Urn plates shewn, and a paper by Mr. Carnegy Johnson on Stock Patterns, giving four instances. The plates for identification now reach 408; but several have been identified from time to time.

Fenland Notes and Queries. January 1900. Part 44. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THIS Part opens with a good article on Fenland Tokens, and gives an illustrated plate of twelve of them, all of the seventeenth century. Farthing and halfpenny tokens seem to have been most general, but a firm issued shilling tokens in 1811; it was then discovered that more coins were in circulation than had existed, so they were withdrawn. There is an article on the question whether Woodston or Woodstone is right. The Ordnance Department had the approbation of the late Rector, Canon Tompson, who favoured the terminal stone, because he admitted that it looked much prettier than Woodston! In Domesday it was spelt Wodestun, but in the parish registers it is always spelt Woodston. It has been spelt Woodstone by the parochial authorities only for the last 100 years. Certainly ancient custom should govern the spelling of places as a rule. Several other interesting notes, and a specimen of a poem by a Fenman, are given in the Part.

The following interesting letter and notes thereto in reference to above tombstone appeared in "Somerset and Dorset Notes and Queries" of March 1890:—

"This stone was discovered in its present position some twenty-five years ago, being till then covered by some remains of buildings which are seen in older representations of this, the principal entrance to the Church, and then removed. The Rev. J. E. Hanauer, curate of Christ Church here, has in the 'Quarterly Statement' of the Palestine Exploration Fund for April, 1887, clearly shewn that this is the tombstone of Philip D'Aubigny, one of the Barons of England who signed Magna Charta in 1215, and afterwards joined in the Sixth Crusade in Egypt and Palestine. He was at Acre in 1222, and was with the Emperor Frederic in 1228 when Jerusalem was recovered. D'Aubigny remained with the Crusaders until his death, which was shortly prior to their expulsion from Jerusalem in 1236 by the Sultan of Egypt. Matthew Paris, referring to events happening just before this expulsion, writes (p. 432): 'About this time the noble devotee to God's service, the unflinching warrior, Philip de Albineto, after that he had done battle for God in the Holy Land, and oft made pilgrimage there, at last, in the same land, closed his days, and, making a laudable end to his godly life, merited, what living he had long fervently desired, holy burial in the Holy Land.'

"Jerusalem, 14 January 1890." "E. CHISHOLM BATTEN.

"There can be no doubt that the noble warrior, here commemorated, is the man alluded to by Mr. W. Daubeny [see p. 7 of same Number] as being the first of the name seised of the manor of South Petherton, and who is also mentioned by Collinson (vol. iii., p. 108).

G.J — 1898

"The letter of Mr. Hanauer, to which Mr. Batten calls attention, gives important information concerning the Crusader in question, collected mainly from the pages of Matthew Paris—information which is too remarkable to be omitted in any notice of his career; and the reader will be pleased to remember that, in what follows, the page-references apply to W. Wat's edition of Matthew Paris, published by Hodgkinson, London, in 1640.

"In A.D. 1215 Philippus de Albeneio (which is but one of the many old spellings of the name) was selected as one of the Barons to sign Magna Charta at Runnymede (p. 255). After this crisis in his history, John, who is said to have exclaimed in a burst of rage, 'They have given me four-and-twenty over-kings,' lost no time in wreaking his vengeance on those nobles who had extorted his compliance with their demands. With this end, having hired a body of foreign mercenaries, he commenced by besieging the Castle of Rochester, then held by William 'de Albineto.' Having succeeded in reducing this fortress after an eight weeks' siege, he purposed putting the whole garrison to the sword, but his thirst for blood was satiated by the slaughter of those only of the highest rank, amongst whom were William and Odinevellus de Albineto. During his desolating march Philippus de Albeneto, with others, was compelled to accompany him (p. 274). Belvoir Castle next fell into the tyrant's hands, its castellan being Nicholas, the son of William de Albineto, who delivered up the keys in the vain hope of saving his father's life (p. 275).

"After the death of John in 1216, Philippus de Albineio was present at the coronation of his son, Henry III. (then a child of eight years old), whose training was entrusted to his (Philip's) care during the regency of the Earl of Pembroke. He was likewise present at the relief of Lincoln, and at the decisive battle (called the 'Fair of Lincoln') in May 1217 (pp. 289, 295, 298). The Earl of Pembroke died in 1219. In 1222 (p. 295) Philip resigned his post of Royal Tutor, and the king was in the year following declared to be of an age to govern for himself (p. 313). Our hero then took his sword and lance, and his trusty Norman shield with its escutcheon of four fusils, and joined one of the expeditions accessory to the fifth Crusade.

"In a letter to his friend and brother-in-arms, Ralph, Earl of Chester and Lincoln (p. 313), he states how, on nearing Damietta, the Crusaders' fleet met many vessels leaving that port in consequence of the disastrous issue of the campaign led by the Pope's legate. On this he returned to Acre, where, according to some historians, he eventually died. During his residence of fourteen years (viz., from 1222 to 1236) in Palestine he seems to have taken an active part in the stirring events of that period, and he lived to see the possession of Bethlehem and Nazareth by the Christians, with free access to Jerusalem and the Holy sites; thus dying just in time for the consummation of his pious desire to be buried on the sacred spot where all that is left of him now lies, as related by Mr. Chisholm Batten.—SOMERSET EDITOR."

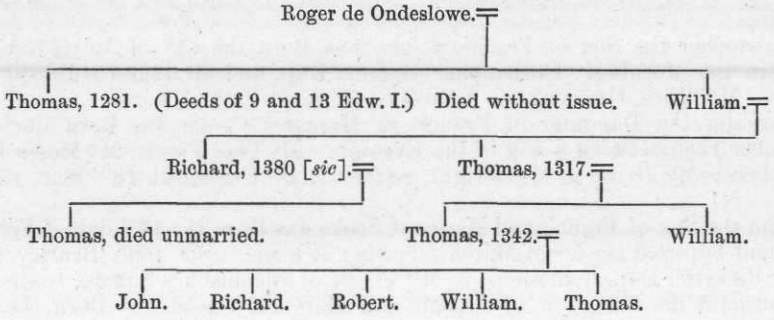
Pedigree of Waring.*

The family of Onslow, antiently seated in the County of Salop in the Reign of Henry III., took their surname from the Lordship of Ondeslowe (now written Onslow) in the Liberty of Shrewsbury; surnames being in that Reign first generally assumed, but not fully settled till the end of Edw. I. In the several Visitations in Salop by the Heralds, Roger de Ondeslowe is first wrote of that place; he had issue two sons, Thomas and William. (Collins's "Peerage," vol. iv., p. 292.)



This Pedigree was taken by me RICHARD HILL WARING at Hayes in the County of Salop, in the year 1746, partly from one made by my ancestor Adam Waryng in 1540 to that time (which I have compared with and proved by deeds in my possession), and thence continued from deeds, etc., and my own knowledge. That part of it from Richard Waryng (who married Mary Grafton) to 1623, included and entered in the Heralds' Office, and signed Thomas Waryng, 1623, only that John, the sixth son (seventh child) of Richard and Margery Waryng, is not there mentioned.

ARMS.—Gules, on a fesse engrailed or, between three stags' (or bucks') heads caboshed argent, three bugle-horns sable.

CREST.—On a wreath argent and gules a cubit arm couped and vested gules, in hand proper a hawk's lure gules, stringed vert, reflecting round the arm.

MEMORANDUM BY MAJOR JOHN SCOTT, M.P.

"Mr. Humphrey Sandford, who died 1st August 1791, aged 74 years, left five daughters, and a second son, Captain Edward Sandford, who has been 22 years in the H.E.I.C.S. at Bengal, and now commands a battalion of Sepoys on that establishment, where Mr. Sandford had also four nephews, two of whom are returned to England—Major John Scott, M.P. for Stockbridge, and Captain Jonathan Scott of Netley Cottage, co. Salop; the third, Captain Richard Scott, who has been 23 years in the H.E.I.C.S., distinguished himself in the last war in the Carnatic, where he commanded the 26th Battalion of Bengal Sepoys, under Sir Eyre Coote, and he is now at the head of the same corps, under Earl Cornwallis; the fourth, Lieutenant Henry Scott, is Fort Adjutant of the garrison of Chunar—a very remarkable and uncommon instance of five persons of one family surviving so many years' military service in the torrid zone. To these may be added a sixth, Lieutenant Jonathan Scott, the brother of Mr. Scott of Betton, who is of the same family. Mr. Sandford was High Sheriff of the county of Salop in the year 1787, in the 70th year of his age."

Reviews.

The Right to Bear Arms. By "X." Second Edition. London: Elliot Stock, Paternoster Row.

THIS Work is a reprint of a series of letters by "X." sent to the "Saturday Review," and now published altogether, with a Preface well written by the author, justifying the correctness of his articles, and which, as he says, had they been written by an Officer of Arms, with access to the records of the College, the case would have been proved yet more conclusively.

The Author mentions the well known instances where the King's licence was not obtained in the grant of arms in the case of Lord Hoo in 1454-5, and which was adjudged null and void, and also in the previous case of Sir Robert Grosvenor v. Scrope, 1390, when the right of appeal was made to the King personally, who not only decided the case, but of his own motion quashed the arms assigned by the Constable to Sir Robert, who was condemned in the costs. The Author, too, gives a good account of the constitution of Earl Marshal, with the original Latin warrant and also a translation of it, by virtue of which the Howard family had vested in it in perpetuity by Charles II. the jurisdiction appertaining to the office, with the grant of the Earldom of Norwich. From this reign to the present time the baton of office is received from the hands of the Sovereign to each succeeding Duke, who nominates the English Officers of Arms.

From the creation of the College of Arms in Richard III.'s reign, if not before, the officers seem to have had absolute control of all armorial matters in England, and the Author gives a copy of the earliest known Charter in the original Latin, as well as a translation of it. This is dated 1 Richard III., at Westminster. He also gives a copy of the warrant for the preparation of the present Norroy's Patent, granted by Her Majesty to William Henry Weldon, Esq., and dated 15 March 1898. Chapter V. gives the history of the Visitations from 1580 to 1680, which were instituted not so much to publish the names of those having the right to arms, as to punish and "make infamous" by proclamation all manner of persons unlawfully "usurping any manner of title, dignity, or worship, as esquire or gentleman." The Author is unable to give the proofs the heralds required, but he surmises that all arms which could be shewn to have been in use prior to the Battle of Agincourt were accepted; those adopted since were subject to various tests, as the Visitations were intended as a protection to those who lawfully possessed the right of using arms. Any one using arms without the right of doing so was compelled to write a disclaimer over his own signature, and was fined £40 or so. The volume embraces an account of the arms borne in Scotland and Ireland, also of foreign arms, and concludes with a chapter of popular fallacies, wherein the Author gives credit to the officers of the College of Arms, in which we can concur, for in all the various offices we can affirm that nothing seems to be withheld, but that all the gentlemen disregard any trouble so long as they can furnish information to the many persons continually applying to them.

Gideon Guthrie: a Monograph. Edited by C. E. GUTHRIE WRIGHT. London: Blackwood and Sons, 1900.

THIS book is founded on two manuscripts, one begun in 1712 and ended 1730, the later one copied in 1812 by Guthrie's grandson, who modernized the spelling. The Bishop of Edinburgh has written an interesting Introduction, wherein he states that Guthrie introduced the English Prayer Book at Brechin in 1711, at a time of great persecution against it, for the Rev. James Greenshields was summoned before the Presbytery of Edinburgh; the magistrates supported it, and he was thrown into the common jail. He appealed to the Court of Session, and finally to the House of Lords, which reversed the decision of the Court of Session.

The account Gideon Guthrie gives of his early life is very interesting, and his persecution by his own countrymen for his freedom of opinion. Those conversant with the similar phases the Scotch churches have passed through since Guthrie's time, upwards of 200 years ago, need not think that more severity was exercised then than during the early part of 1800; but that in 1900 there should be a combination of Scotch churches brought about is an interesting fact which we can only suppose to be generated in the same spirit that has made all Australia into one confederacy, and induced the young men of Canada, Australia, and New Zealand to fight alongside their British countrymen in South Africa.

The Work will be most interesting to young Scotchmen of either of the Churches, and is got up in a very neat way by the Publishers, the collotypes of Gideon Guthrie's two sons and granddaughter and great-granddaughter, Mrs. Thomson Bonar, being well done. There are also three pedigrees given at the end which render the family history more complete. It is well worth securing, and its price of 5s. will go towards the Queen Victoria's Jubilee Institute for Nurses.

A Record of the Redes, of Barton Court, Berks. By COMPTON READE. Hereford: Jakeman and Carver, High Town.

THIS is a quarto volume, nicely bound in white, with the Reade Arms in gold and scarlet on side, and printed on an antique paper. The Editor writes a very good preface, giving full particulars of how he worked up his material, and stating that he could master most details of the English branches, but was only able to give a skeleton outline of the American line. He begins Chapter I. with an account of Thomas Rede (whose wife, Anne Hoo, claimed descent from Henry I.), who died 1556, and was founder of the line associated with Barton Court, the ancient Palace of the Abbots of Abingdon. Chapters II. and III. are devoted to Sir Thomas Reade and his issue, his second son marrying, in 1624, Mary, second daughter of Sir Thomas Cornewall, who shews descent from King John, and also from John of Gaunt through Anne Lyttelton, daughter of Sir Gilbert Lyttelton. Foster, in his "Royal Descents," gives another royal line from Edward I. Why the Editor has made such a hash in giving the pedigree of Mary Cornewall we cannot tell, because other pedigrees are plain enough, but hers in Chapter IV. is quite unintelligible, and so we leave it. The Shipton line is shewn in Chapter V., through Sir Compton Reade marrying Mary, daughter of Sir Gilbert Cornewall, from whom Edward the second Baronet was born, whose sons Winwood and Thomas were third and fourth Baronets, Sir Thomas having a son John the fifth Baronet, from whom was John the sixth, and his son John Chandos became the seventh Baronet, whose great-nephew became the eighth Baronet in 1851, and another great-nephew George Compton the ninth Baronet.

In Chapter VII. is shewn the later Ipsden line, from John Reade marrying Anna Maria, daughter of Major Scott-Waring, in 1796, of whom there are eight royal descents given. In our present number (p. 58) is given his descent from ancestors of Shrewsbury and of Scot's Hall, co. Kent. From John and Anna Maria Reade of Ipsden sprang as the youngest child Charles Reade the novelist, the author defending him against the criticisms of Mr. Kent in the "Dictionary of National Biography." The account given of the well-known novelist and playwright is but scanty, the plan of the book making it impossible to enlarge it; but we are referred to the Memoir published in 1887.

The Work would have been greatly improved had it not been so compressed in appearance, as it looks as if a vast amount of matter had to be squeezed into as small a type and as close as if it were a half-penny newspaper. Even the Preface is in a small type, closely set, and the whole book is spoilt by this undue compression, which would not have been done had the compilers had any experience of issuing family histories. The binding is neat, while the pedigrees given could have been improved before being printed in the way in which they are shewn. There are twenty-four royal descents in all, and yet no Index of names given! Some family portraits are reproduced, but they might have been improved had they been placed in more experienced hands.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. X., April to June 1900. A. and C. Black, Soho Square.

These three Parts are as diverse and as interesting as their predecessors. The April number has the arms of Dr. John Stokes, depicting an aged philosopher reading by an oil lamp, and the moon and stars on his right, which might be intended as illuminating the mind; it has besides eight Urn bookplates, and a reputed Bewick plate is given belonging to a printer in Newcastle.

The May Part is the best published, we believe, in all the ten volumes. The chasteness of the Marquess of Dufferin's bookplate, by Mr. Wyon, makes it form a good frontispiece; and with an additional plate singularly original of Mr. Cyprien Gourand's, shewing his own portrait and that of his dog, and also a representation of his chateau, besides the plate of the Library of the University of Missouri, engraved by Mr. Winfred Spenceley of Boston—as fair a sample of good drawing as one needs to see. These plates, besides others for identification, make the Part exceptionally good.

The June Part fails to attract after its showy predecessor, but it has three plates of Bishop White Kenneth, arranged as many of the Irish plates are, with books piled up as bearers to the arms; of the three we prefer the first given. Two plates, shewn through the kindness of Count zu Leiningen-Westerburg, shew at once a great contrast between the periods they were done in—1743 and 1898. The plates for identification now run up to 421, that of 419 shewing a fine example of mantling around a knight's helmet.

ÆQUAM SERVARE MENTEM

Bookplate of Lord Raymond of Abbots Langley.

The armorial ensigns here depicted are those of Robert (Raymond), Baron Raymond of Abbots Langley, co. Hertford, but there is nothing to indicate whether they refer to Robert the first Lord of that name, who was so created 15 January 1731, when Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench (an office he held until his death, 15 April 1732, in his 60th year), or, as is most probable, to Robert, his son and heir, the second and last Lord, who enjoyed that peerage from April 1732 to his death, without issue, 19 September 1756, in his 40th year.

The 2nd and 3rd quarters represent the arms of the family of FISHE, of Southill, in Bedfordshire. Sir Thomas Raymond, one of the Justices of the King's Bench (1680—83), the father of the first Lord, married in or before 1673 Anne, 3rd daughter of Sir Edward Fishe, 2nd Baronet (an Irish Baronetcy created 12 February 1621/2), of Southill aforesaid. The name of this Anne, who was born 16 February 1632, appears in the Heralds' Visitation of Bedfordshire made in 1635, at which date her only brother, Edward Fishe, was six years old. He became in 1658 the 3rd and last Baronet, but at his death, s.p., probably about 1670, she (who did not die till March 1714) and her sisters became his coheirs, and their descendants were consequently entitled to quarter the arms of the Fishe family. It is, however, to be observed that the arms of Fishe given in the said Visitation (as published by the Harleian Society in 1884, vol. xix., p. 170) are "Azure, a fess, argent, over all a bend, gules, charged with 5 mullets, or," whereas the tinctures, as depicted in the plate, appear to be entirely different, viz., "Or, a fess, gules, over all a bend, sable, charged with 5 mullets, argent."

A good pedigree of the Lords Raymond is given in Clutterbuck's "Herts," vol. i., p. 171.

Thomas Penson Armes Painter, at the signe of the Kings Armes on Ludgate Hill, where you may have Pedegrees, curiously written, and painted, Armes, Funerall-Escotcheons, Ensignes, Cornetts, Drum's, Trumpett-Banners or any thing drawne according to Heraldry, also Palls of Velvit.

Description of the Arms

SURMOUNTING THE UNDATED ADVERTISEMENT OF

"THOMAS PENSON, ARMES PAINTER."

The date of this curious and well-designed achievement can be fixed as being between 1677 and 1682 or even 1680. It was not till 14 December 1677 that Sir Robert Shirley, Bart. (who in 1711 was created Earl Ferrers), was summoned as Lord Ferrers (his arms as such Baron being given in the margin), while on 1 December 1682 Edward (Noel), fourth Viscount Campden (whose arms as a Viscount similarly appear), was created Earl of Gainsborough. Moreover, Henry (Pierrepont), Marquess of Dorchester (whose arms as such are likewise given), died December 1680, when that Marquesate became extinct, and it is not likely that he would be commemorated after his death. The date being thus settled, it follows that the Royal arms in the centre must be those of CHARLES II. These are surrounded with four shields, one at each corner, those in the 1st and 4th being the cross of ST. GEORGE, for England; that in the 2nd being the cross of ST. ANDREW (or saltire), for Scotland; while that in the 3rd is (presumably, for the tinctures are not indicated) the cross of ST. PATRICK, for Ireland. The whole is surrounded by sixteen coats in the margin. The four at the top are the arms of England, France, Scotland, and Ireland. The eight at the sides are (1) those of a Royal Dukedom, being the arms of H.R.H. James, Duke of York, afterwards James II.; (2 to 6) those of each of the five grades of the English nobility, viz. the arms of Francis, or Charles (Seymour), tenth, or eleventh Duke of Somerset; of Henry (Pierrepont), Marquess of Dorchester; of Theophilus (Hastings), seventh Earl of Huntingdon; of Edward (Noel), fourth Viscount Campden; and, lastly, of Robert (Shirley), Lord Ferrers; (7) the arms of a Baronet, being those of Sir William Hicks, Bart.; and finally (8), the arms, presumably, of a Knight, i.e. those of Sir Thomas Marsh, Knt., of South Mimms, Middlesex (who died December 1677), but possibly these last-named arms may be those of an Esquire, i.e. of Edward Marsh, Esq., only son and heir of the said Knight. As to the four coats of arms at the bottom, it is impossible, as the tinctures are not indicated, to allot them with any certainty. The families of Palmer of Northamptonshire, of Bamfylde of Devonshire, and of Edwards of Cambridgeshire (the fesse being ermines), bear similar coats to the first three, and may possibly be thus indicated. The fourth coat is not so easily disposed of. It is somewhat similar to that of the family of Hereford, or Herford, but in the arms of Hereford, or Herford, the chief is indented, and not plain.

Genealogical Notes and Queries.

BLACKET QUARTERING IN BISHOP.

In "Visitation of London," vol. i., p. 74 (Harl. Soc.), the eighth quartering of Bishop is given as "Blewet [?]," this is really Blacket, and comes in by Baskerville with Milborne. Ralph Baskerville second son—this accounts for the crescent on the Baskerville quartering—of Sir John Baskerville, Knt., born 1410, married Anne, daughter and coheiress of Sir John Blackett, Knt., and left an only daughter and heiress, Jane, married to Simon Milbourne. (See Burke's "Commoners," vol. i., p. 90.) The coat, tricked "Azure, a bend between two cotises and six crosses-crosslet fitchée or," occurs also in Dugdale's "St. Paul's," p. 118; and a reading in "Visitation of Gloucestershire," p. 269 (Harl. Soc.), under 'Whittington,' where it comes in with Milborne and Baskerville; but there seems to be a reading with the field "sable," which, if there is anything in a name, might prove more correct.

Reviews.

A Saunter through Kent with Pen and Pencil. By CHARLES IGGLESDEN. Ashford: "Kent Express" Office, 1900.

THIS is a pleasing quarto, making 80 pp., but which might have been much enlarged, and we think with as great a success as in its present size. The popular parts are still left for a future historian, taking in from Chislehurst and Sevenoaks—charms in themselves—Gravesend, Cobham, Faversham, Whitstable, etc., right on through Canterbury to Dover and Folkestone. The author has chosen the district between Tunbridge, Maidstone, and Ashford, right on to Dungeness, and begins the book at Kennington, near Ashford. In this village they have national schools, a pump to commemorate the Queen's Jubilee, allotment gardens and recreation ground, some model dwellings, and two ghost stories—one of a lady in white and another of a spectre coach. Happy Kennington, when you are told besides that neither spectre has ever been seen! Among its historical facts are accounts of smugglers and the remains of a gallows-tree, where highwaymen dangled at times.

Wye is next given, with its bridge built in 1638, superseding an old wooden one. It is celebrated for its wild flowers and a "holy well" blessed by St. Eustachius, endowed with such miraculous power that by merely tasting it all diseases were cured. It is still used for eye affections. Chilham and Dungeness are next given, though some distance apart, the former having every evidence of being near where a Roman settlement had been. The church is noted for its imposing tower and handsome porch, and was built in 1534; it had also a gallery for the use of the "company of singers" added to it in 1772, but this has since disappeared. The village revels in tales of a murder and a headless lady on a "spirited" charger.

Our author having gone as far as Dungeness, with its lighthouses looking straight over to Cape Grisnez, gives Pluckley next, near to Ashford, which as a quiet retreat seems well suited for invalids, being 300 feet above the sea. Strolling among the tombstones in the old churchyard you come across several singularities, one being that of a tombstone commemorating the death of a wife with the name of her husband also engraved, although still alive and yet waiting to join her. Surrenden, with its fine elm trees, is within a mile, and the Dering family has been there for thirty generations, the previous baronet having possession of the title at the age of three, and holding it till the age of eighty-eight. The "Dering Arms" Inn is, as the author says, a picture in itself. The remainder of the book gives brief accounts of Marden, Charing, Lenham, High Halden, Bethersden, Sturry and Fordwich, and Wingham, of which each has an excellent history given, and, like the preceding villages, illustrated in little sketches in black and white, give a charm to the book, which, at its price of 2s. 6d., is worth every Kentish man having it. It is in its second edition, and being nicely printed and a convenient size, ought to command even a better sale still.

The Registers of the Parish Church of Aston-juxta-Birmingham. Transcribed and Edited by WILLIAM F. CARTER, B.A., of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. Birmingham: C. Cooper and Co. 1900.

THIS is the first volume of the Registers of Aston, which begin in 1544. They were originally printed by the Editor from 1600 in the "Midland Antiquary," and by the advice of friends he has issued the present edition, beginning from the earlier date, involving 46 pp. as a preliminary to p. 1, which begins the 1600 Registers—an unfortunate arrangement, because it shews the difference in the paper, etc. The whole makes 141 pp., and the Registers go to 1639. The Editor has supplied an Index at the beginning, and the book is worthy of being supported by the Members of the Register Society and others. No price is given for the Part, which is done up in a paper wrapper.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. January, April, July 1900. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THESE three Parts keep up the general interest of the Work. "Richmond during 1812" is interesting, shewing how alert the inhabitants were for fear of being invaded by the British Fleet under Sir George Cockburn. There are articles on the Virginia Militia, Abstracts of Virginia Land Patents, and an account of Virginia in 1628, where a ship is mentioned as having taken an Angola with many negroes, which the Captain bartered for tobacco to bring home. In genealogy there is a good account of the Fitzhugh family, with five portraits in the three parts, and also of the Farrar family, originally of Yorkshire, and related to the Bishop of St. David's, who suffered martyrdom in 1555.

The April Number contains several papers on Virginia, and also adds to the account of John Paul Jones, the pirate as he was called in England.

In the July Number are some interesting letters of Mrs. Ralph Izard concerning affairs in 1780 and after, expressing the hope that the French would come and drive the English away, and the capture of Lord Cornwallis and his whole army is such a stroke against Great Britain that she must give in and have peace! This Part also contains a photograph of the tomb of Robert Throckmorton, in Huntingdonshire, England, and continues the accounts of the Fitzhugh and Farrar families, besides other interesting articles.

Fenland Notes and Queries. April and July 1900. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THE April Part opens with an interesting account of an old benefactor to the Fens, John Perry, who in 1716 stopped Dagenham Breach for the British Government, after being in the employ of Czar Peter the Great as a Comptroller of the Russian Maritime Works. There is also an amusing account of "Bill Hall," a local poet and philosopher flourishing at Lynn in 1816.

In the July Number more tokens are given, illustrated by a plate, the quaint spelling of one of which is Peeterbovrowgh. There is also a good notice of Colonel Moore, C.B., an enthusiastic local antiquary and a descendant of Sir Thomas More.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. X., July to September. A. and C. Black, Soho Square.

THE July Part contains a very nice plate of four designs by Mr. J. Vinycomb, well printed by the Art Printing Company, and the plate of Mr. John P. McKnight is a quiet reminder to the worthy President that process blocks can be printed equal to engraved plates. The Shrewsbury School plates are samples of 1750 work. The School might worthily improve upon the present plates, if any artistic scholar in 1900 undertook the design. Among the plates for identification we see are the arms of Lord Raymond of Abbots Langley 1732 (No. 425), a full description of which, by the Clarenceux King of Arms, is kindly written for our present Part. Our Editor had it among his large collection of bookplates.

The August Part is embellished with nine bookplates of the Rylands family, the head of which died early this eventful year. His sons are well known, too, as leading members of several Societies, Mr. J. Paul Rylands having been Hon. Secretary with Sir George J. Armytage, Bart., of the Harleian Society, at present busily occupied as Editor of "Musgrave's Obituary," four volumes of which will be issued this year. Mr. Harry Rylands is well known as the active Secretary of the Society of Biblical Archæology. The frontispiece plate of Mr. J. Paul Rylands was designed by his brother. The two arms by our old friend Cleghorn are good examples of work done thirty years ago. The plates for identification now number 430.

Monumental Inscriptions in Lucerne.*

[Copied August 1899, and July 1900.]

English Cemetery.

On Kreuzbuch, about two miles from Lucerne, is situated the English Cemetery. The cemetery was purchased, enclosed, and the chapel built therein, in loving remembrance of Florence Brandt (who died on 19 September 1873), by her bereaved parents, both of whom lie buried with her. The property was given by the founder to the Colonial and Continental Church Society on the terms specified on the brass plate in the chapel. The cemetery and chapel were consecrated by the Bishop of London (Dr. Jackson) on 19 September 1874. The Swiss custom of using the same ground for interments after a lapse of years appeared so repugnant to Mr. Brandt that he bought this ground so that the bodies of those therein interred might never be disturbed. The view from the graveyard is magnificent, and the ground itself is beautifully laid out and well cared for.

In the chapel are the following inscriptions on brass plates:—

This Mortuary Chapel | was erected by | Adolphus & Elizabeth Alice Brandt | to the Glory of God | in memory of | their only child | Alice Florence Brandt | A.D. 1874.

This Mortuary Chapel & Cemetery were | transferred to the Colonial & Continental | Church Society, London, in perpetual trust | for the use of British Subjects residents | or visitors of Lucerne; provided that the | rites and service of the Established Church | of England be complied with and used | Sept. 19th, 1874.

In the crypt below are deposited the remains of | Alice Florence Brandt. | Born at Teddington, Middlesex, 29 Decr 1853 | Died at Bellerive, Lucerne, 19 Septr 1873.

In the crypt below lies the body of | Elizabeth Alice widow of Adolphus Brandt | Born 15 Oct. 1826. Died in London 1 June 1899.

[Mr. Brandt was buried on Corpus Christi day, 12 June 1884. Mrs. Brandt died at 12 Leinster Gardens, Hyde Park, after six years of great suffering, on Corpus Christi day, 1 June 1899, and was buried on 12 June 1899, the fifteenth anniversary of her husband's funeral, with her husband, daughter, and sister. Mr. Brandt was for many years Consul-General for Bavaria.]

There was also buried in the crypt of chapel on 1 March 1879 (Miss) Emily Markham, aged 46.

Miss Markham was Mrs. Brandt's sister.

In loving remembrance of | Thomas Edward Rendall, | Born at Oxenwood, Berks, Nov. 1st, 1820 | Died at Lucerne Sept. 2nd, 1854. | Buried in the Old Protestant Cemetery.

ABSTRACTS OF WILLS.

JOHN BYSSE of Publowe [clothier]. Buried at Publow. Wife and executrix, Julyan. Children James, John, Peter, Agnes, Margaret, Frances.

Witnesses: John Pyks of Bristow, the elder, John Bysse the elder.

Proved 25 Aug. 1557. (30, Wrastley.)

[This will ought to have been included among the P.C.C. wills on p. 322 (Second Series, Vol. I.). It refers to John Bisse the elder, son of Philip Bisse who heads the pedigree on p. 139 (ibid., Vol. II.). There is no mention of Richard Bisse, who is said in the pedigree to have probably been a son of the above John.]

JOHN BYSSE of Croscombe, co. Somerset, clothier. Will dated 7 Oct. 1557. To be buried in the parish church of Croscombe. Sons Philip and John. Daughters Denyse (Dionysia) and Joane. Son-in-law Joseph Carter. Wife Joane lands (not specified), with reversion to son Philip. Residue to wife and son James. Brothers James and John. Executors, wife Joane, son James.

Witnesses: Joseph Carter and John Nelles.

Proved 21 Oct. 1557. (38, Wrastley.)

[This will ought also to have been included among the P.C.C. wills on p. 322 (Second Series, Vol. I.). It is evidently that of the husband of Jone Bisse of Trestocke there given. This John occurs at the bottom of p. 140 in the pedigree. The mention in this will of son-in-law Joseph Carter looks as if there was a mistake in the marriage of Richard Bisse and Mary Carter given in the bottom right-hand corner of p. 140 (ibid., Vol. II.). The mention of the daughter Joan makes it possible to delete the word "probably" under that lady's name in the top right-hand corner of p. 141 (ibid.).]

THOMAS ASHE of Batcomb, co. Somerset, clothmaker. Will dated 12 Sep. 1558. To be buried in the parish church of Batcomb. Son Thomas lands in Batcomb and Mapowder, co. Dorset. Witnesses: John Tollar, curate, Richard Miller, Philipp Bisse. (64, Noodes.)

Commission, dated 29 Oct. 1558, to John Biss to administer during minority of Thomas Ashe, executor.

And I desire my said Brother William to be assisting and directing to my Wife in the managing and letting her estate, and in the disposeing of her affairs to the best advantage. Thus I have settled my temporall concerns. I hope I have made my peace with God, and desire to die in perfect charity with all mankind. His Grace Cosmo George Duke of Gordon.

Arms of the Dukes of Gordon.

With respect to Plate I., being the arms of one of the five Dukes of Gordon from 1684 to 1836 (not of necessity those of the 3rd Duke, Cosmo George, as shewn below), it is to be observed that the lines indicating the tinctures in the 2nd and 3rd quarterings are apparently incorrectly drawn.

Plate II. is the bookplate of Cosmo George, Duke of Gordon in Scotland, who succeeded his father in that title 28 Nov. 1728; was a Representative Peer of Scotland from 1747 till his death; was a Knight of "the most ancient and most noble order of the Thistle" 10 Feb. 1747; and died 5 Aug. 1752, in his 32nd year.

The armorial ensigns attributed to the Dukes of Gordon are thus blazoned in J. P. Wood's edition of "The Peerage of Scotland, by Sir Robert Douglas," published in 1813:—

"ARMS.—Quarterly: 1st, Azure, three boars' heads couped, or, for GORDON; 2nd, Or, three lions' heads erased, gules, langued, azure, as LORD OF BADENOCH; 3rd, Or, three crescents within a double tressure, gules, for SETON; 4th, Azure, three cinquefoils, argent, for FRASER.

CREST.—A buck's head couped, proper, attired, or.

SUPPORTERS.—Two deerhounds, proper, collared, gules, charged [i.e., each collar being charged] with three buckles, or.

MOTTO.—CREST [i.e., over the crest]: BYDAND.

MOTTO.—ARMS [i.e., under the arms]: ANIMO NON ASTUTIA."

The above blazon accords precisely with Plate II., but it may be observed that in the engraving of the armorial ensigns of the Dukes of Gordon, which is given in Wood's "Peerage" above-named, the word "Bydand" is omitted, and the crest is engraved as a buck's head, affronté, issuing out of a ducal coronet. This is the method (save that the word "Bydand" is retained) in which, according to Burke's "Peerage," it is now borne by the Marquesses of Huntly, who, on the extinction of the Dukedom of Gordon, 28 May 1836, became the head of the Gordon family.

Here are interred | the earthly remains | of | the Rev. James Martin | of the | Church of Scotland | late Minister of St. George's Church, Edinburgh | born at Brechin 30th Ju— 1800 | died 22^d^ May 1834. | It was amidst the labours of a vocation which he adorned | that his strength gave way | and though he consented to try the restorative effects of a milder climate | he sunk under the power of disease | till in this place—to him a land of strangers— | he breathed his last.

To the high culture of an accomplished gentleman and scholar, | he added the culture of a still higher and holier discipleship in the school of Jesus Christ,— | and hence an union of the most refined sensibility | with the deepest sacredness. | In his own land, many are the friends who have been saddened, | by the tidings of his death, | many among his sorrowing people | who revered him as their faithful and conscientious pastor while he lived | and in whose hearts the sense of his worth and piety and goodness | will long abide as one of their dearest and most hallowed recollections | but Christianity speaks an universal language | and there is a felt affinity between its disciples | throughout all the climes and countries | of the world. | This he richly experienced along his journey on the continent of Europe | the pilgrimage from his home to his grave | In the leadings of that merciful Providence which directed all his footsteps | he at Paris and Nice and Rome | was brought into converse with followers of the Lord Jesus | who soothed him on his way | and at Leghorn, there were children of the same spiritual family | who owned him for a brother | tended his dying moments | and closed his eyes.

[This entry has been cancelled, but is marked "stet" in margin.]

[Sarah Paggin was daughter of William Paggin. "Mr Paggin" was Peter Paggen of East Hill, brother of William Paggen, who was buried in Mount Nod, Wandsworth. He died 15 June 1720, aged 69; and a fine of £2 10s. was paid, "not being buryed in woolen" (Churchwardens' Accounts). His will is dated 2 Oct. 1717, and proved 15 July 1720. Legacies are left to Sir John Shaw, Bart., and niece Dame Sarah Shaw his wife; and to Paggen, Peter, Judith, and Katherine Shaw, four of their nine children, with ultimate remainder to Paggen Shaw.

In the will of Katherine Paggen, widow of Peter Paggen, dated 19 Jan. 1721 and proved 1 June 1724, one of her trustees is William Shaw, son of John Shaw, late of Cheshunt, co. Herts, deceased. She bequeaths legacies to Dame Sarah Shaw, widow of Sir John Shaw, and children. For marriage of daughter Catherine see 1712, April 29.

Sir John had married previously Margery, daughter and heiress of Sir John Peake, Knt., Lord Mayor of London, and had four children. From the eldest son the present Baronet is descended.]

KNEVET SHIELD IN CHARLETON CHURCH, WILTS.

At the feet of Sir Henry Knevet and his wife, she being Isabel daughter and sole heir of Sir James Stump (Aubrey and Jackson, p. 211), is a shield without escutcheon of pretence containing nineteen quarterings of Knevet ; this is engraved and tricked on Plate xvii., No. 301, of that work, thus :—1. "Argent, a bend within a bordure engrailed sable," KNEVET. 2. "Paly of six argent (really or and gules) a bordure azure bezantée," BASSET of Weldon : G. E. C.'s "Peerage" says in note to vol. i., p. 261, "John Knyvet, son and heir of Eleanor, daughter and coheir of Ralph Basset." 3. "Or, three bends azure a canton argent," BOTETOURT of Mendlesham : "Joane, daughter and heir of John Botetourt, married John, son and heir of Sir John Knyvet, Knight" (Banks' "Dormant and Extinct Baronage," vol. ii., p. 54, pedigree). 4. "Chequy or and gules a bend ermine," CLIFTON : Elizabeth Clifton, heir of first Lord, married Sir John Knevet (Banks, vol. iv., Appendix, p. 20). 5. "Gules, four bendlets argent," CAYLY : Emme Cailli married Roger de Clifton (Banks, Appendix). 6. "Argent, a chief gules, over all a bend engrailed azure," CROMWELL : Elizabeth, daughter of Ralph, Lord Cromwell, married Sir John Clifton (Banks, Appendix). 7. "Ermine, a fess gules," BERNAKE : Maud Bernake, daughter and heir of John, married Ralph, Lord Cromwell (Banks, Appendix). 8. "Argent, three cinquefoils gules a canton of the last," DRYBY : Alice, daughter and coheir of Sir John Dryby, married Sir John Barnake, Knight (Harleian Society, "Yorkshire Visitation," p. 338). 9. "Chequy or and gules a chief ermine," TATESHALL : Jane, daughter and coheir of Robert Tateshall, married Sir John Dryby ("Yorkshire Visitation"). 10. "Gules, a lion rampant crowned or" (not generally crowned), D'ALBINI : Amabill (Banks, vol. i., p. 181) or Anabilia ("Yorkshire Visitation," p. 176) D'Albini married Robert Tateshall. 11. "Azure, three garbs, two and one, or," CHESTER : Mabilla, daughter and coheir of Hugh Cyveliock, married William D'Albini. 12. "Azure, a wolf's head erased argent," LUPUS : inherited through Maud Meschines, sister of Lupus. There seems to be an omission here of a quartering, viz., LYNNE, as Sir Henry Knevet who married Anne Pickering, the next quartering, was the great-great-grandson of Sir John Knevet who married Alice, daughter and heir of William Lynne (Banks, Appendix). 13. "Ermine, a lion rampant azure, crowned or," PICKERING : Anne Pickering, daughter and heir of Sir Christopher ("Yorkshire Visitation"), married as her second husband Sir Henry Knevet, her first being Sir Francis Weston, Knight, so, thanks to the Weston quarterings in the Harleian Society's "Surrey Visitation," p. 7, the following quarterings can be partially made out :—14. "Argent, three chaplets, two and one, gules," LASCELLES : Margaret, daughter and heir of .... Lasselles, married James Pickering ("Yorkshire Visitation," p. 250 ; but in the note to this there seems to be another quartering, BARBON, that ought to have come in). 15. "Sable, a cross, and in dexter chief a cinquefoil argent," MORESBY : Anne, daughter and heir of Sir Crystofer Moresby, married Sir James Pickering, Knight ("Yorkshire Visitation"). 16. "Per fess argent and gules (really gules and argent), six martlets, three and three, counterchanged," FENWICK : I have failed to find how this and the three following come in, but according to the " Yorkshire Visitation " pedigree this ought to be THYRKELL. 17. This is wrongly engraved in Plate xvii. (I have no reading of the carved shield), and is unnamed no doubt on that account by Canon Jackson, but it reads, " Per bend or and azure, a lion rampant gules." " Surrey Visitation " says, " Gules, a lion (rampant) argent, a bend azure," TYLLIOL : a coheir of Lascelles, Matilda, married as her second husband Sir Robert Tilliol, but this seems far-fetched (Banks, Appendix, p. 32). 18. " Or, a cross moline, gules," LATON. 19. " Surrey Visitation," p. 7, says, (Gules,) a lion (ermine, MENEVILL ?) ; Canon Jackson's plate, " Argent, on a lion rampant sable three gouttée d'or ;" Papworth says, BIRNELL. To judge from the next quartering in the " Surrey Visitation," which is ETTON, these last four come in with Lascelles or Moresby, as Etton is the next Moresby marriage in the " Yorkshire Visitation," and this together with LEWKNOR.

Anne Pickering's mother ought certainly to have appeared on the Charleton shield. Perhaps some correspondent can produce evidence to prove 16 downwards.

PEDIGREE OF DESCARRIERES (see p. 77).

David Descarrieres (son of John and Rachel Haine) married Marie Guilliaume. He had a second daughter, Anne, b. 24 March 1744-5.

David Descarrieres (son of John and Esther Dupond) became a Director of the French Hospital in 1794. He was a merchant of Wood Street, Spitalfields. His will, which contains a list of friends who were to have rings, and under which his Smart and Ballance nieces received £5000 apiece, was dated 12 November 1804, and proved in the Consistory Court of London in October 1807 by James Guillemard and Peter Renvoizé.

John Descarrieres and Rachel Haine had, besides the children given in the Pedigree at p. 77, Abraham, bap. in Threadneedle Street 24 January 1696-7, and Daniel, bap. there November 1698. Possibly one of the two was the progenitor of the Abraham Descarrieres, whose marriage in 1796 with Charlotte Bland is on record at Dublin.

COLE AND HOPTON.

In "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Third Series, Vol. III., on p. 12 is part of the Pedigree of Hopton, containing this entry :—" Anne (Hopton) married Richard Cole of Nailsea Court, co. Somerset ; both died 1650." I thought it might be interesting to readers to know that there is still at Nailsea Court a loose wooden shield carved thus :—Quarterly : 1 and 4, Per pale argent and gules a bull passant counterchanged, COLES (so spelled on the monument in Nailsea Church which bears the same blazon) ; 2, Gules, on a chevron argent three estoiles sable, CARR ; 3, Or, a fesse azure, over all a saltire gules charged with five bezants, ASH ; impaling, Ermine, on each of two bars sable three mullets or, HOPTON.

Reviews.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. X., September and October. A. and C. Black, Soho Square.

THE September Number has as its frontispiece the portrait of the late Mr. Andrew W. Tuer, and two of his bookplates. The portrait of the late philanthropist Mr. H. S. Ashbee, who has left valuable collections both to the National Gallery and the British Museum, is given on two bookplates, both admirably drawn, with the Ash and the Bee very prominent ; there are also two other plates of his given. The Number contains also four landscape bookplates, with an extended list of persons using them. The Address to the Society by the Honorary Secretary at the Annual Meeting is given in full.

The October Number was unavoidably delayed, and the Editor, in apologizing for it, states that the next Number will be a double one, embracing November and December. We see that the Editor of "Ex Libris" has quoted from our "Miscellanea" the whole of the description of Lord Raymond's plate, for to his originality is due the idea of giving so many plates for identification in the Journal from time to time. Those plates now number 441, and 9 are given in this October Number, besides the introductory plate of Dr. G. C. Peachey, and that of Mrs. Anne Hunter, the wife of the celebrated Surgeon. As Messrs. Black have not heard of the appearance of the forthcoming November-December Number, we are afraid that the worthy Editor is short of material or assistance in issuing it. Are we premature in suggesting to him and his compeers the advisability of making "Ex Libris" for the coming century a quarterly periodical?

Fenland Notes and Queries. October 1900. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THE present Part is the completion of Vol. IV., and contains an interesting account of Wisbech Castle, with a plan as a separate plate. There is also an article on "Delinquents around Peterborough," giving their names and the fines they paid for bearing "armes ag^t the Parliament." It would be interesting to know if the "Delinquents" were afterwards the King's partisans. Altogether it is a good Number.

Cokayne Pedigree.

Facsimiles are added of the signature of Sir Aston Cokayne and (of the beautiful one) of his mother to their respective wills, both proved at Lichfield. The will of the latter, therein described as "Anne Cokayne of Ashbourne in the county of Derby, widowe, one of the daughters of Sir John Stanhope, Knight, deceased" (mentioning her "great yeares, being 77 years of age"), is dated 13 Aug. 1664, and proved 5 Sep. following. That of the former, therein described as "Aston Cokine [sic] of Derbie, Barronett," and as having been "Sealed, signed, and published by the said Sir Aston Cockine" [sic], is dated 6 Feb. 1683 [i.e., 1683/4], 36 Car. II.; the date of the "Inventory of the goods and chattels of Sr Aston Cokaine [sic] of Pooley in the county of Warwick, Barronet, deceased," being 27 Feb. 1683. The date of the proof, however (by Isabella Turvill, daughter and sole executrix), is, as given at the bottom of the will, 24 April [sic] 1683. This is evidently a mistake for 24 March 1683 [i.e., 1683/4], which last is the date endorsed at the back. The letter "s" in the word "Aston" seems omitted in Sir Aston's signature.

The following extracts from Parish Registers illustrate the above Pedigree :—

A London Citizen's Diary, 1738.†

In 1738 John Morton, linen-draper of London, then aged 74, wrote out what he called a "Diary," but what really were his recollections of a long and busy life. It is now in possession of one of his descendants, Mr. Molesworth Jeffery of New Norfolk, Tasmania (son of Bartholomew Jeffery, by the Hon. Wilhelmina, sister of the seventh Viscount Molesworth). Mr. Jeffery, who is now in his 89th year, has kindly permitted me to peruse the volume, and from its pages I have gathered the subjoined pedigree. The almost entire absence of dates in the "Diary" is remarkable, but I have no doubt many, relating to the pedigree, could be supplied by any one who has access to the reprinted City Registers. The pedigree gives many additions to that of Morton in vol. i. of Hunter's "Familiæ Minorum Gentium" (Harleian Society). I append also a List of the names of persons incidentally referred to in the "Diary."

Reviews.

Handbook of the Administrations of Great Britain, 1801—1900. By FRANCIS CULLING CARR-GOMM, Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law. Second Edition. 1901. Smith, Elder, and Co., 15 Waterloo Place.

THIS very instructive work begins with narrating the union of the Legislatures of Great Britain and Ireland in January 1801, when Mr. Pitt, after having been Prime Minister for seventeen years, pledged himself to bring in the bill for the removal of Catholic disabilities at once. George III. was strongly opposed to it, and Mr. Pitt had to resign; and the King's reason gave way at the time, and thus in May 1801 Mr. Addington (afterwards Lord Sidmouth) became Prime Minister, and was in power little over three years. We thus particularize the beginning of the work, because in the present time the union of England with Ireland at the beginning of 1801 seems fraught with no better feeling after a full century than it began with, notwithstanding all the assistance England has during the whole time lavished upon Ireland. From the second administration of Mr. Pitt to his death, when Mr. Canning came into power, carries us over the Peninsular War and Waterloo, and so on to Sir Robert Peel's administration, followed by that of the Bedford influence, until in 1858 Earl Derby came into power, afterwards followed by Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Disraeli, who was made Earl Beaconsfield in 1876.

To readers of medium years, up to this period and all through Her late Majesty's reign, the various changes in parties and politics are doubly interesting; and to those younger, whose recollections may only take them after the time when Lord Palmerston and the Earl of Derby were in power, the extension of the franchise, liberty of the press, and the rise of cheap literature coincide with the rise of England in all that appertains to the liberal proclivities of the period. When in 1848 all Europe was so convulsed, it brought no material change in England, which had been troubled at home with the Irish famine in 1846. When in 1851 the Exhibition brought all Europe to England, people were realizing all the blessings of peace, until cruelly dissipated by the war with Russia, to be followed by the Indian Mutiny in 1857.

The state of parties under every change is carefully narrated throughout the Work, and although materially shortened, enough is told to restore one's recollection of every principal event in the history of Great Britain, both in our own lifetime and previously. To add to the history of parties even more vividly, the Author has been relieved from narrating any change in the dynasty for the last seventy years, and all at the present time are only brought face to face to the vast alterations it makes through the death of a king or queen, as it affects the changes in all the offices, etc.

The Author has adopted throughout the plan of giving the greatest information in the shortest of space, and the consequence is, his work is readable from beginning to end. He is able even to give us in Appendix B. the Majuba Convention of 1881, and in Appendix C. the strength of our forces in South Africa, and the losses up to the end of the century. The work is invaluable to all readers, and ought to be in the hands of every one interested in the history of their own country. Every page is brimful of discussion, if the work is perused with friends, and makes one feel inclined to fight all our battles o'er again with harmony and pleasure. To Members of Parliament the work is invaluable.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. November and December 1900, and January and February 1901. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square.

THE Double Number for November and December has four different plates designed by H. R. Badeley, delicately drawn, and giving good examples of mantling, two of them having a group of volumes forming a base for the shield. Two others by Mr. C. E. Eldred shew great originality, and four by Miss C. Helard shew equal variety. This Double Number also has fifteen other plates illustrating a Paper on landscape bookplates by J. F. Verster and the Editor, who has to be congratulated on his fine Double Part.

The January Part has a frontispiece of bookplate of C. Lorenz Meyer of Hamburg, being his own portrait; a good photograph would have been better without being called a bookplate. There is the genial address given by Sir James Balfour Paul, Lyon, and as plates there are four landscape examples given, and seven plates for identification, bringing the number up to 451.

The February Part has the Title and Index for Vol. X., besides four plates for identification, now up to 455. There are also three plates of John Wilkes, the demagogue of Hogarth's time and Member of Parliament in 1768, and a couple of charming landscape bookplates of John Orr of Edinburgh, 1891, and of Walter Conway Prescott.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. No. 3, Vol. VIII. January 1901. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS Magazine still keeps printing original letters from persons prior to the Revolution, whether loyalists or not, and whose estates were confiscated for regard to the old country. That feeling is fairly exhausted after the experience of a century, and the world happily enters on a better knowledge of its neighbour, so that we find the great British race in a new century consolidated into one vast community, each anxious for itself to spread the good feeling of fellowship around.

In a letter to Governor Hutchinson in August 1775 from Harrison Gray, Receiver-General of Massachusetts, the spirit seems strongly loyal, and he remarks that "our army" obtained a complete victory over the "rebels" at Bunker's Hill; and he adds, "Had the Navy given that assistance to the Army that Admiral Montague would have afforded, not a rebel would have escaped." Again, the same writer speaks of "the complete victory over the rebels at Charleston." His son afterwards started for London to procure necessaries, and he hesitates to give an account of the city, "for the continual noise and confusion is such that were I possessed of millions I would reject them for a small pittance in retirement." As for the country, he said that he landed at Graves End, and he would not attempt to describe it, "as the Garden of Eden could not excel it."

There is an interesting account of Miss Ball, the daughter of Captain Joseph Ball, and who was the mother of George Washington. She lived with her widowed mother and two sisters in a Northumberland home, the property of her mother's third husband, Captain Richard Hewe, a vestryman of St. Stephen's parish and prominent business man, who soon died, leaving his step-daughters with their mother, who gave her daughter Mary one "young likely negro woman," several rings, a young mare and a good pacing horse, with a plush side-saddle, and most of her linen and apparel. The daughter was eighteen at her mother's death, and her half-brother by her mother's first marriage died about the same time, leaving Mary Ball his land in Stafford, and her father left her "400 acres of land in ye freshes of Rapport river," thus making her rich with an endowment of Virginia real estate before her marriage with George Washington, which came about through her guardian Major Eskridge.

There are several interesting papers in this Part, which ends Vol. VIII., and a good Index, Title, etc., complete it.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Parts 47, 48, for October 1900 and January 1901. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THIS Magazine still has interesting accounts of local buildings and amusements, as well as of phraseology from time to time. A short Paper on Wisbech Castle begins the October Part, which also gives another on Wilsthorpe Church and one on Crowland Rectory.

To begin Vol. V. the Editor gives a good account of Church Hall, Maxey, with an illustration of the old parsonage. The article also gives an illustration of the old vicarage house of St. John's, Peterborough, which is now a small inn! "Maxey Registers" were printed by Messrs. Mitchell and Hughes, and the Editor of "Fenland Notes" kindly edited them, but the sale did not meet half the cost of them. Copies can still be had. The January Part has also a further account of Wilsthorpe Church, besides other matter. The Editor issues an ample Index for Vol. IV.

† I do not feel sure that this John is the son of William, because (a) in his will he speaks of a brother also named John (and Alice, William's wife, did not marry again, so he could not have a half-brother); and (b) William's will speaks of sons Thomas and John, without any hint of there being two Johns.

‡ An Amey who came from Stapleford in Cambridgeshire, and married a Martin, is mentioned on a ledger-stone in North Chapel.

STEPNEY MARRIAGE REGISTER.

1714 Dec. 27 John Descarrieres of Bethnal Green, Weaver, and Esther Bridge, S. [The French name of the bride is Anglicized.]

D'HERVART, DE CERJAT, AND WINN.

TO THE EDITOR OF "MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA."

SIR,

Vol. IV. (New Series), p. 221, of your Magazine contains the Pedigree of d'Hervart, de Cerjat, and Winn, with notes and seal engravings, communicated by Henry Wagner, Esq., F.S.A.

Having just read the mentioned pedigree in a number acquired by chance, and knowing something about "Mey," I will tell you what I found out in the archives at Berne in July 1898 by the help of the Archiviste, M. Türler.

Gabriel May von Hünigen (not Huningen, near Basel) was born 1717 at Hünigen near Berne. During 1747 and 1755-6 he was "Land-Major." During 1755 he was Member of the Great Council ("Mitglied des grossen Rates"). He married at Vevey, 11 October 1754, Louise Sabine d'Herwarth (as it is mentioned in the archives: "Eine Engelländerin, deren Eltern zu Vivis"—which means Vevey at the Lake of Geneva—"wohnten"), and died without children and function 29 March 1759.

As far as I know the family of May, which exists still at Berne, spell their name as I write it, not as the "Miscellanea" gives it.

Note 3 says ". . . . in terms which imply that there was already a relationship between them." So it was, for the parents-in-law of Philibert Herwarth were:—Abraham von Graffenried, born 1644, Captain and Lord of the Chamber of the Elector of Saxony 1660—68, Mitglied des grossen Rates von Bern (as they call it "der Burger") 1673; died 3 November 1675. Uxor Rosina von Graffenried, daughter of Francis Lewis von Graffenried and Ursula Cerjat; married 17 March 1671; died in London March 1717. Jedida Assuba was their second daughter, and was baptized 1674; married to Philibert Herwarth 1698.

My father has collected much about our family. I continue to do so, and shall be very glad if my knowledge may be of any use to you.

PRIAULX.

TO THE EDITOR OF "MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA."

DEAR SIR,

May I be permitted to make a correction in the Priaulx Pedigree on page 81, Vol. II., Third Series, communicated by Miss S. M. Woodrooffe.

Sir John Holman of Weston Favell, Northamptonshire, Bart., was Member of Parliament for Banbury 1661—81; his will was proved P.C.C., 4 July 1700, by Dame Jane Holman, relict and executrix. Her will was proved P.C.C. on the 10th of July 1705, by William de Bouverie; her maiden name was Bouverie, sometimes spelt Fawtre. The de Bouveries were of Dutch descent.

Sir John Holman and his wife Dame Jane Holman had only one child, called Mary, who was married in Weston Favell Church on the 19th of April 1692 to the Right Worshipful Sir William Portman, Knight of the Bath.

Ann de Bouverie, a sister of Dame Jane the wife of Sir John Holman, married Sir Philip Botelier, Bart., of Teston, M.P. for Hythe, died 1719.

I believe that Burke, in his "Extinct Baronetcies," describes the wife of Sir John Holman as née Forby; this is incorrect, and should be Fawtre or Bouverie.

Reviews.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. March, April, and May 1901. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square.

THE March Part has a good impression of Mr. Heron-Allen and his wife's bookplate. It is nicely engraved by Mr. Harry Soane, and the Arabic and motto, "Diligenter et Fidelis," as well as the other lettering, are excellently written. "Bookplates of Medical Men" are continued, as well as those for identification. There are also two landscape plates given, both of which are well engraved.

The April Part has the plate of Mr. C. Dexter Allen as a frontispiece, an English and an American Allen both serving for each month, and even a likeness may be traced by their friends. The Part shews examples of Mr. Louis Rhead's plates, and one of Mr. A. Godwin Fowles, representing an organist playing in an old church. Mr. C. Dexter Allen also contributes an excellent letter, giving an account of the meeting of the National Arts Club in New York, and at which he had the pleasure of addressing some four hundred persons on the subject of bookplates.

The May Part has a worthy notice of an ardent engraver of bookplates, Mr. Allan Wyon, who descends from a family of Engravers to the State since 1816, and whose family has done more than any other engravers known. Mr. Allan Wyon travelled for some years, but finally settled with his brothers Joseph S. and Alfred B. Wyon in business, and with them have conjointly held the office of Chief Engravers of Her Majesty's Seals. In the Supplement to this Part Mr. Allan Wyon gives eighteen examples of historical bookplates, enhancing the value of the Part considerably. The plates for identification now number 467.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Part 49. April 1901. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

IN an interesting Paper on "The Drainage of the Great Level," the writer expatiates with just tribute of thankfulness on the loving work the monks of the Order of St. Benedict gave to the land, the very air from which was noisome, "and those who breathed it lived through agues to a jaundice." To them in the tenth century we owe the culture of the fens, a fruitful land in lieu of fenny delph and mere. King Witlaf endowed the monks of Crowland with that isle, but they sought no reward; the hope of a higher life enabled them to endure toilsome lives, and leave behind them "a heritage which would be the glory of England, and a joy for ever—our Abbeys." Early writers seek to account for the submersion of the Fenland by conjecturing some great earthquake; but the subsidence or upheaval of the crust of the earth, which is constantly in operation, accounts for the encroachment and retirement of the sea. "The Fenland has never been at rest, and will never cease to change."

The Part also contains the wills of the Irby and Tache families, and an account of the borough of Peterborough and also of the Gentlemen's Society, besides other interesting Papers.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. No. 4, Vol. VIII. April 1901. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS Magazine has an interesting account of General Joseph Martin of Albemarle, co. Virginia. It narrates what vicissitudes he went through; how he obtained permission to pass a night in prison with a friend, and in the morning departed, leaving his tomahawk and ten guineas behind. The friend escaped from prison, and thirty years after, being then a Member of Congress, met his benefactor in Virginia, and before parting gave him twenty guineas for old acquaintance. Martin rose to command troops and was made Brigadier-General, although unable to write. He went on several expeditions against the Indians, was finally elected to the legislature of Virginia, and lived to be 68. The Part has also several genealogical notes of eleven families, and also among the reviews is that of "Paul Jones, the founder of the American Navy." His historian, although occupying two volumes in his account, seems to be narrating only the life of a common sweep, and the reviewer proves the history wrong in several particulars. The Part, however, is very interesting, and concludes with a full Index.

Pedigree of Harvey of Maên in Cornwall.*

* Communicated by CHRISTOPHER HARVEY, Fleet Surgeon R.N.

† Dr. J. J. Howard, in his "Visitations of Suffolk," makes the above Anthony Harvey a son of William Harvey and Jane Cocket of Ickworth, and adds that he was married to Lucy Lesly of Essex, and that they had a son Francis with a [?], also that Anthony was buried in Exeter Cathedral.

Now the Anthony Harvey buried in Exeter Cathedral has a monument there shewing the quarterings of Nernuyt and Herbert. Therefore he could not be the son of William of Ickworth.

The Clarencieux (William Harvey), in his Visitation to Suffolk in 1561, states that Anthony Harvey was the son of Thomas Harvey and Constance Herbert, also that he married a daughter of .... Willesden of Devon, and that they had issue Margaret daughter and heir, who married Sir Amyas Paulet. (This marriage is quoted by Vivian and others.)

It is to be noted that the Clarencieux (William Harvey) does not mention the second wife of Anthony Harvey because his Visitation was probably before the second marriage, as the son Francis was born the year following, i.e., in 1562.

This Francis, set down with a [?] in Dr. J. J. Howard's Visitation, was probably living in Devonshire with his mother, and so became lost to the family in Suffolk.

From the fact that William Harvey, Clarencieux, named Anthony Harvey of Devon in his Visitation to Suffolk, I conjecture that Anthony was in Suffolk at that time preparatory to his marriage to Lucy Lesly of Essex.

The tradition in my own family is that our first ancestor in Cornwall, Francis Hervey, Rector of St. Breage, was the son of an Anthony who was in some way related to the Paulets, and that we originally descended from the Ickworth family of Herveys.

The Right Honourable
Wilmot Viſcount Liſburne,
in the Kingdom of Ireland.

The Right Honourable
Wilmot Earl of Liſburne,
in the Kingdom of Ireland.

Bookplates of "Wilmot, Viscount Lisburne," and of "Wilmot, Earl of Lisburne."

These two bookplates, the style of which is very similar (presumably between 1766 and 1800), most probably belonged to the same person, viz. Wilmot Vaughan, who, on 19 Jan. 1766, succeeded his father as (4th) Viscount Lisburne in the peerage of Ireland, being, ten years later, on 1 July 1776, created Earl of Lisburne in that kingdom, and who died 6 Jan. 1800, aged 72. It is, however, not impossible that No. 1 may be as early as 1741, and may refer to the father of the above-named Peer, viz. to Wilmot Vaughan, who, on 15 Jan. 1740/1, succeeded his brother as (3rd) Viscount Lisburne, and who died 19 Jan. 1766. It is also possible (though hardly likely) that No. 2 may be as late as between 1800 and 1820, and may refer to Wilmot Vaughan the 2nd Earl of Lisburne, who succeeded his father in that dignity 6 Jan. 1800, and who died unmarried 6 May 1820, in his 65th year.

The arms quartered with the coat of Vaughan are those of the family of Wilmot, Earls of Rochester; the first Viscount Lisburne having married, 18 Aug. 1692, at St. Giles' in the Fields, Malet, sister and coheir (in 1681) of Charles (Wilmot), 3rd Earl of Rochester, daughter of John, the 2nd Earl, the well-known favourite of Charles II. She died on 13 Jan. 1708/9, and her husband on 20 March 1720/1, being parents of John, 2nd Viscount Lisburne, who died without male issue 15 Jan. 1740/1, and who was succeeded by his brother, Wilmot, 3rd Viscount Lisburne, as above mentioned.

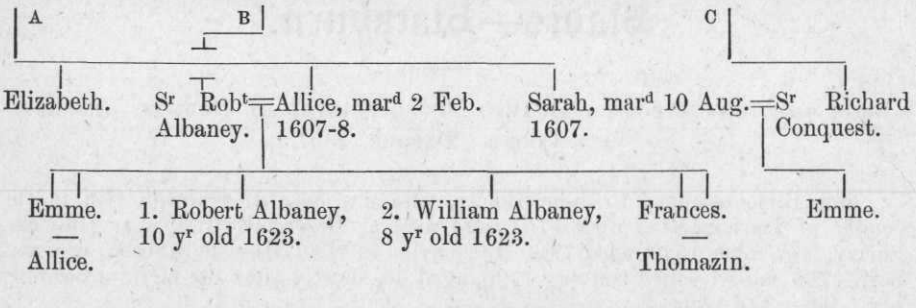
* Communicated by CECIL T. DAVIS, Esq.



Aubrey, in his "Natural History of Surrey," gave a transcript of an inscription at Wandsworth, Surrey, now lost :—

"Here lieth the Body of EDWARD SNOW, of Chicksands in the county of Bedford, esquire, in memory of whom EMMA his wife, daughter to WILLIAM BYNE, in the County of Sussex, esquire, erected this monument. He had issue ELIZABETH, ALICE, and SARAH. He deceased at the Mannor of Alfarthing Anno Dom. 1587."

Edward Snow was second son of Richard Snow (Will proved P.C.C. 1554, 18, More) of Chicksands, co. Bedford, and his wife Elizabeth (Will proved P.C.C. 1587, 17, Spencer), a gentlewoman of the Privy Chamber to Queen Elizabeth, and daughter of . . . . Cavendish, aunt to the old Countess of Shrewsbury. He married Emma, daughter of William Bynd of Wakeherst, Sussex, and his wife "Allice," daughter of Richard Colepeper of Wakeherst. After her husband's death in 1587 she married John Bowyer, J.P., second son of John Bowyer of Camberwell, Surrey, who died 2 June 1623, s.p.

As the Parish Registers as well as the Churchwardens' Accounts for the parish of Wandsworth for 1587 are missing, there is no record locally of Edward Snow. His name does not occur in the parish deeds, though in 1608 Cecily Riche assigns a lease of certain lands belonging to the church to John Bowyar, who was Lord of the Manor of Alfarthing in 1598. He appears to have received this manor from his grandfather Robert Draper, and Edward Snow was his tenant.

The will of Edwarde Snowe of Alfarthing, par. Wansworthe, Surrey, is in P.C.C., 73, Spencer (1587).

Edward and Emma Snow had three daughters, Elizabeth, Alice, and Sarah.

1607-8 Feb. 2 Sir Robert Albany, Knight, married Mrs Alce Snow; at Wandsworth. (Wandsworth Parish Registers.)

Sir Robert was son of William Albaney of London and his wife Thomazin, daughter of Richard Butle.

Sir Robert and Alice had issue, Emme, Allice, Robert (æt. 10 in 1623), William (æt. 8 in 1623), Frances, and Thomazin.

1607 Aug. 10 Sir Richard Conquest, Knight, married Mrs Sara Snowe; at Wandsworth. (Wandsworth Parish Registers.)

Sir Richard was second son of Sir Richard Conquest of Houghton, Beds, by Dorothy, daughter of Robert Hewet of Ampthill, Beds, Esq.

Sir Richard and Sarah had one child, Emma.

The family of William Bynd intermarried with that of John and Elizabeth Bowyer : John Bynd was first husband of Elizabeth Bowyer ; Catharine Bynd was married to Sir Edmond Bowyer ; and Emma Bynd was married to Edward Snow and afterwards to John Bowyer.

The Family of the Dudleys.*

These Dudlyes descended fro' the Suttons, L^{ds} of Dudley Castle. John de Sutton in Com. Notting. married Margret daughte' & coheir to Roger de Somerie, Barro' of Dudley, to whom her father pas'ed ouer his right & title to the Man'or & Castle of Dudley.

John second son of John Ld Dudly had a son & Heir called Edmond who being brought up to the Study of the Lawes in Grayes Inn became so great a Proficient y^{t} he was made one of the privy Council to Hen. 7, was Speaker of ye H. of Com'ons in 19 of H. 7. This Edmond wrote a book called Arbor Reipub : He wth Rich. Empso' a Sivemaker's son of Towcester, became great Projectors in takeing advantage of such as had transgressed ye penal Lawes, who by their exactio' became so odious that in the 1 of Hen. 8 they were tryed, condemned, executed.

This Edm'd Dudley left 3 sons John, Andrew, & Jerome, one daught^{r} maried to Will. Ld Stourton. Andrew became a Knight but suffered death in the 1 of Q. M. for being instrumentall in bringing the Lady Jane Grey to the Crown.

John the Elder brother being but 8 Years old at his father's death had to his Guardian Edw'd Guilford. is arested at Cambridg by ye Earl of Surry & executed for treason 1 Q. M. By his wife who was Sole Heir to Sr Ed. Guilford he has 8 sons & 5 daughters: 1. Henry who was slain at the Seidg of Bullein; 2. John who had ye title of Earl of Warwick in his father's life time, who dyed in prison in the cause of Q. Jane; 3. Ambrose after created Earl of Warwick; 4. Guilford who married the Lady Jane & suffered also on yt account; 5. Robert after Earl of Lester; 6. Another Henry slain at St Quintens; 7. Charles who dyed a child.

Ambrose the eldest that survived dyed without Issue. Robert the next was Master of ye Ordinance at St Quintins, by Q. Elizabeth made Constable of Windsor Castle, after baro' of Denby & Earl of Lester. He first married Ann Heire to Sr John Robsart, who died by a fall fro' a paire of staires. Concerninge his 2d marriage wch was with Douglas Howard 2d daughter to Wm Ld Howard of Effingha' & wid. to ye Ld Sheffield, there is some dispute, whether it was lawfull, but he had a son by this Lady cal'd Sr Rob't Dudly whome he mentions in his last will & Testmt as his base son. Nor could he safely call him other, hauing openly married Letice daughter to Sr Fran. Knowles, wid. to Walter Earl of Essex in the life time of that Lady Douglas Howard. This Sr Robt. Dudley was brought up in X't Church, Oxford, proued a great Mathematician & affecting Nauigatio' had ye Comd of 3 smal ships in An. 1595 he took & destroyed 9 Spanish ships, and coming to ye River Orenoque in ye West Indies named that Island scituated in the north of it Dudleana. Yett tho' his father in his Testamt calls him his base son he did not account himselfe illegitimate, for after the death of Q. Eliz. haueing married Alice the eldest daughter of Sr Tho. Leigh of Stonely in Warwicksh., considering that if he made good his legitimacy not only the Earldom of Lester but also Warwick Castle, etc., would come to him, being intailed by his uncle Ambrose Dudley. In order to wch he procured a com'issio' fro' the Archb'p of Cant. directed to Zach. Babingto', Chauncellor of Litchfield, for examining witnesses to proue his father's marriage.

Which was no sooner discerned by the Lady Letice [than] she procured a Bill fro' Sr Ed. Cook, Attur. Gen., to bring the busyness into the Starr Chamber, And upo' a Petitio' fro' ye Ld Sidney to the Councill all further proceedings wer stopped.

Neuertheless they gaue leaue yt he should examine witnesses in the Starr Chamber to proue his Legitimacy, wherupo' by testimony upo' oath of the Lady Douglas his wife (tho' at that time married to Sr Ed. Stafford) & diuers other perso's the' prsent this marriage wth the Earl did appear. That she was first contracted in Canon Row in Westminster and 2 years after solemnly wedded to him at Asher in Surry by a lawfull Minister according to the form of Matrimony by Law established, in ye presence of Sr Ed. Horsey who gave her in marriage & Robt. Sheffield, Esqr, Dr Juke, Hen. Frodsham & 5 other persons whose names are there specified. That the ring wherewith they were so married had 5 pointed diamonds & a table diamond, wch had been giuen him by the Earl of Pembroke, grandfather, on Condicio' yt he sh. not bestow it on any but whom he made his wife. Likewise ye Duke of Norfolk was the Chief mover to this marriage. But the Earl of Lester pretending a fear of the Queen's indignatio' in case it sh'd be known, made her vow not to reveal it till he gaue her leaue, wherupo' all her Sevants were com'ded secrecy.

It was also further deposed yt wthin 2 dayes afte' ye birth of Sr Rob't Dudley the Lady Douglas receued a letter fro' her Husb. ye Earl in wch he thanked God for the birth of his son, etc., and subscribes himself yr loueing husband Robert Lester.

Other depositio's there were many, sóme testifying wt this Earl had expressed in reference to his son as of one Owen Jones, who averred upon oath that he was waiting upo' the sd Sr Robt. Dudley at Offingto' in ye county of Suff. when he was 10 years of age at School, the Earl of Lester came to see him and said Owen, thou knowest that Robin my boy is my lawfull son as I doe & haue charged thee to keep it secret, so I charge thee not to forget it, and therefore see thou be carefull of him.

Diuers other expressio's fro' ye Earl tending to the same purpose were testifyed by many credible p'sons. Besides wt Ambrose Earl of Warwick his brother had utterde.

Also that the Earl endeauoured to p'swade the Lady Douglas to disclaim the marriage, offring 700li p' annu' in the Close arbour of the Queen's garden at Greenwich in the p'sence of Sr Jo. Husband & George Digby in case she would do so. And upo' her refusal terrifying her with protestations yt she should neuer haue a penny fro' him.

It seems the mother had the Custody of her Son, for it was deposed that the Earl tendered her 100li to deliuer him unto Sr Edward Horsey, Capt. of ye Isle of Weight, to be there brought up by him wch was refused.

As for her marriage wth Sr Edw'd Stafford, a p'son of great honour being Embas'ador to France wch was objected against her, she alledged that she did it to secur her life, haueing had some ill potions given her wch occasioned the loss of her heir & nailes & repeating swet that she had thereby don the greatest wrong that she could to herself & son.

But all these Depositions were rejected in the Star chamber as was euident by the sentence giuen ag'st the sd Sr Rob't Dudley.

The proceedings gaue such discontent to Sr Rob't Dudley, that he quits the relm, and obtains licence to travaile for 3 yeares, wherof his aduersaries took such advantage as that they procured a special privy seal to com'and his return home, wch not obeying, his lands were seized by the Statute of Fugitiues.

Upon his departure out of England he took with him as is credibly reported the daughter of Sr Rob't Southwell of Wood Rising in Norf., a very beautiful lady in the habit of a Page, whom he married in Italy, & seating himself in the territories of the Duke of Tuscany had by reason of his singular indowments no little esteem in those p'ts. For by his means it was that Legorne, a smal & obscure vilage, not only grew to be a most famous port, but adorned with excellent buildings & to be as eminent a Mart as Scala Franca in Italy is. As also that the Town & Marshes in those parts haue by his Contriuance been happily drained.

His fame therefore spreading into Germany, he had by letters patent fro' his Imperial Majesty Ferdinand ye 2d bearing date at Vienna Martij 9, Anno 1620, the Title of a Duke conferr'd upo' him to be used by him & his Heires throughout all the dominions of ye Savyd Empire, wherupo' he was generally called Duke of Northumberland, wch title John his grandfather bore tho' forfeited by Attainder in 1 M.; so did he while he liued and so doth Charles his eldest son by the daughter of Sr Rob't Southwell.

He was a person tall, strong, comely, & valiant, famous at tilting, singularly skilled in Mathematics & chiefly in Nauigatio' & Architecture, a rare chymyst & of great knowledge in Physick as his learned works do sufficiently manifest. Especially that he wrote De Arcanis Maris, printed at Florence 1646 and since at Venice in folio adorned with Sculpture, also that of Physick called Catholicon of no small esteem wth the most skilfull of that professio'.

He was also famous for the inuentio' of that Powder now called Cornachine Powder, touching ye Virtue wherof the learned Marcus Cornachinus of Pisa hath written & endeauoured to show that all corporeal diseases may be safely and suddainly cured thereby.

The great Duke of Tuscany allowed him a yearly Stipend of about 1000 a year sterling. He erected a noble palace in the city of Florence and his daughters were all married to Princes of the Empire. He dyed Anno 1650.

To countenance his marriage with Mrs Southwell he alledged that his marriage wth ye Lady Alice Leigh was by the canon Law illegal, because he had carnal knowledge of her during the life of his former wife who was sister to Mr Thomas Cauendish the famous Nauigator.

But to return to the Lady Alice his second wife whom he left in Engl'd with 5 daughters, two wherof dyed unmarried, Katherine was married to Sr Rich. Leveson, Frances to Sr Gilbert Kniveton & Ann to Sr John Holborne. Her husband being made a Duke by the Emperor, His Lady being left in Engl'd was by Patent at Oxford bearing date the 20 yeare of K. Ch. I. made a Dutchess. In wch patent there is this pas'age : "Our deare father not knowing the truth of the lawfull birth of ye said Sr Robert Dudley (as we piously belieue) granted away the titles of the Earldoms of Warwick & Lester to others, wch We now hold not fitt to call in question nor cavell with our deceased father's actions especially when the said Honours were granted, wch we do not intend to alter, And yet we haueing a very deep sense of ye great injuries don to ye s^d^ Sr Rob't Dudley and the Lady Alice Dudley & their children ; & that we are of opinio' y^t^ in justice & equity the possessions so taken fro' them do rightly belong unto them or full satisfactio' for the same, And holding ourselues bound in Honour & Conscience, bound to make y^m^ some rep'atio' now as far as our p'sent ability, etc. We give unto ye Lady Alice Dudley the title of Dutchess of Dudley for her life in Engl'd & other o^r^ Realms & Dominions wth such p'cedency as she might haue had, had she liued in ye dominions of ye sayd Empire," etc.

She was very rich as might appear by the vast sums she gave to pious uses. She dyed at her house near the church of St Giles in the fields, January 12, 1669, being aged four score & ten years.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Part 50. July 1901. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THE present Part is full of interesting tit-bits, one giving the account of the rising in the Fen Country of the peasants, how they looted the shops and were charged by the Upwell cavalry, and proceeding further were met by the magistrates, who could not prevail upon them to disperse. They finally reached Ely, and at Littleport the last struggle took place, and several were wounded on both sides, and others were hanged or sentenced to imprisonment.

There is an article on Tombstone Verses at Boston, several of which are very fervent, while others are as plain as sincerity allows. Another article on Early Ely Wills gives some as early as 1453. Bishop Kennett's speech on the custody of Public Records in 1718 is well chosen, and will interest many, he stating that chests and bales of our ecclesiastical papers were shipped off to Rome, even our Princess's love letters shewn at the Vatican to insult our Reformation. He stated that there was no English Seminary abroad but what has many of our MSS., and the Jesuits' College revelled in its pious frauds of stealing. The Bishop was too ardent an archæologist to keep silent, hence his speech in the House of Lords in December 1718, and a Committee was authorized at once to see that means be adopted to place all documents in proper keeping.

We have to mention that the worthy Editor, the Rev. W. D. Sweeting, is now translated to Holy Trinity Vicarage, Rotherhithe, London.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. No. 1, Vol. IX. July 1901. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS Part begins with an Annotated List of Virginia Newspapers in the Library of Congress, and one is struck by the number of newspapers published in the Southern States of America from 1736 to the beginning of 1800. An interesting account is given of the Protestant Insurrection in Maryland in 1689 in Letters from President Nathaniel Bacon to Governor Lord Effingham, and an article on the Administration in Virginia in 1636 and another on the Assembly of 1641. In genealogy the Fitzhugh family is fully gone into, likewise that of Wilson Cary of Ceelys. Altogether the Part is generally interesting.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. June, July, and August 1901. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square.

THE June Part has an excellent account of Mr. William Phillips Barrett, under the heading of "Modern Bookplate Designers," and gives eight good examples of his work as a supplement to the Part, seven of them for ladies, and one for Henry, 9th Duke of Beaufort. Where all are so carefully designed and drawn it is invidious to say which is the best, flowers being interspersed where possible among the ladies' plates, as emblems of their taste, and his lordship's plate having an architectural screen-work for background. We congratulate Mr. Barrett upon the list of his patrons, as well as Messrs. Bumpus upon the execution of their Supplement.

The Part next issued is for July and August, and it begins with a Paper by Sir James Balfour Paul, Lyon King of Arms, on "Gleanings from an old Album," which is well written and interesting. An article on the "Royal Tressure of Scotland," by "Fess Checquy," is illustrated by the Lauderdale arms and signature of 1710, and that of "Scot of Thirlestoun, Kt. and Bart.," besides that of "Stuart of Dunnairn, Esq." The Annual Meeting on June 29th is fully reported, and the Part concludes by giving examples of five very florid German plates by Baron Augustus Otho A. F. G. Alexander. Born in 1848, he went through the German War in a regiment of Silesian Fusiliers, and finally took up his residence in Vienna, where he associated himself with the "Adler" Heraldic Society and began to design coats of arms, etc. His designs are very original and good, and his mantling clever. The Part concludes with four fine examples of Mr. Vinycomb of Belfast, whose illuminated volume to be presented to Lord Roberts by the ladies of Ireland excited great attention at the General Meeting. The four examples given as a plate are samples of good work in every detail, and his own plate and that of Mr. Swiney's with its castle view are perfection. Altogether this vacation Part could not have been better had a half year been spent on it.

Stone Tablet in South Kirkby Church, co. York, in Memory of Maria Armytage.*

The Stone Tablet in South Kirkby Church, on the accompanying page, is to the Memory of Maria, the daughter of Francis Armytage of that place. It is a mural monument in the chancel, and a good example of the carved stone work of the period.

The coats of arms in the four corners of the tablet illustrate the pedigree of the family. The first coat is that of ARMYTAGE, Gules, a lion's head erased between three crosses-crosslet argent, impaling KNIGHT, Azure, on a fess or, between three fishes hauriant, three roses proper. The second, ARMYTAGE impaling DANBY, Argent, three chevronels braced sable, on a chief of the second three mullets of the first. The third, ARMYTAGE impaling TRAPPES, Argent, three caltraps sable, a crescent for difference. And the fourth, SAVILE, Argent, on a bend sable three owls of the field, a crescent for difference, impaling ARMYTAGE. The relation of these different coats is exemplified in the following pedigree :—

John Armytage of Kirklees in the county of York, Esq.. b. 1573 : High Sheriff of Yorkshire in 1615 ; d. 1650. = Winifred, dau. and heire of Henry Knight of Knight Hill and Brockholes in the parish of Lambeth ; d. 1637 (SHIELD No. 1).

- Sir Francis Armytage of Kirklees in the county of York, created a Baronet by King Charles I. 15 Dec. 1641 ; d. 1644. = Catherine, dau. of Christopher Danby of Farnley in the county of York, Esq. ; d. 1646 (SHIELD No. 2).
- Sir John Savile of Lupset, co. York, Knt., d. 1660 = Elizabeth Armytage, d. 1639. (SHIELD No. 4).

- Sir John Armytage of Kirklees, 2nd Bart., b. 1629 ; High Sheriff of Yorkshire 1668 ; d. 1677. = Margaret, dau. of Thomas Thornhill of Fixby, Esq. ; d. 1695.
- Francis Armytage of South Kirkby in co. York, Esq., b. 1631. = Mary, dau. of Robert Trappes of Nidd in co. York, Esq. (SHIELD No. 3).
- Other issue.

- Sir John Armytage of Kirklees, 4th Bart., d. unmar. 1732.
- Sir George Armytage of Kirklees, 5th Bart., b. 1660 ; d. unmar. 1736.
- Christopher Armytage, b. 1658 ; d. 1727. = Rebecca, d. of Nicolas Moore of Austrope.
- Sir Thomas Armytage of South Kirkby, 6th Bart., b. 1673 ; succeeded 1736 ; d. 12 Oct. 1737 ; bur. at South Kirkby, when the title created in 1641 became extinct.
- Maria, bapt. 23 June 1663 ; bur. 23 Dec. 1665, at South Kirkby.
- Other issue.

John Armytage, b. 1709 ; d. unmar. 28 Oct. 1732.

It will be noted that the tablet states that Maria died on the 23rd Dec. 1665, whereas the register, in which she is called Mary, states she was buried on that day.

Alice, Duchess Dudley.

The very interesting account of this lady, her husband, and her issue, given in the "Family of the Dudleys" (pp. 259—263 ante), states that two of her five daughters died unmarried. This, however, was not the case, for though four of them died in her lifetime, only one, ALICE (as to whom see p. 263), died unmarried. Of the other four :—

(1) DOUGLAS, married Captain William Dansey, and is ancestress of the family of Dansey of Brinsop, co. Hereford (see Cooke's "Duncombe's Herefordshire," Grimsworth Hundred, p. 40). Her monumental inscription in Brinsop Church (copied by G. W. Marshall, LL.D., Rouge Croix Pursuivant) is as under :—

"Here lyeth the body of the R^t Hon. Ladie DOUGLAS DUDLEY, wife unto Captain WILLIAM DANSEY, beinge the second son to ROGER DANSEY, Esq., who departed this life the 11 day of August, Anno Domini 1649."

(2) KATHARINE, the only child who survived her mother, married Sir Richard Leveson of Trentham, co. Stafford, where she died Feb. 1673, and was buried with him at Lilleshall.

(3) FRANCES, married, 30 May 1634, at St. Swithin's, London, as his second wife, Sir Gilbert Kniveton, 2nd Baronet (1611) of Mircaston, co. Derby, and died in or before April 1641, at which date her will was proved (23, Evelyn).

(4) ANNE, married Sir Robert (not "Sir John," as on p. 261) Holborne, Barrister-at-Law (admitted to Lincoln's Inn 9 Nov. 1615) and (1643) Attorney-General to the Prince of Wales. He died in Chancery Lane 14, and was buried 16 Feb. 1647/8 at Lincoln's Inn, from St. Andrew's, Holborn. Administration 28 May 1650 in the P.C.C. His widow was buried 11 Aug. 1663 at St. Giles-in-the-Fields. Will proved 1663, in the P.C.C.

The following burials at St. Giles-in-the-Fields illustrate the above :—

1663	Aug. 11	The Lady Ann Holborne.
1668/9	Mar. 17	The R^t Hon. & truly virtuous Alice, Dutchess Duddeley, a noble benefactress to this parish, carried away this day to the Church of Stonley, co. Warwick.

A copy of the lengthy monumental inscription at St. Giles-in-the-Fields to "the R^t Hon. Lady Frances Kniveton" and to her sister "the R^t Hon. Lady Ann Holbourne" is in Hatton's "New View of London" (1708), p. 264. The will of Duchess Dudley is proved in 1669 in the P.C.C. It would be interesting if one of your contributors would kindly furnish an abstract thereof, shewing all her descendants and any other relatives therein mentioned.

† It was from the Savages of Tachbrooke that the mother of Walter Savage Landor sprung, and though that celebrated author considered they were descended from the more noble family of Savage in Cheshire and Worcestershire, there is no evidence to support his view, but rather the contrary.

Monumental Inscriptions

IN

Marylebone Parish Church.*

BELOW WEST GALLERY.

New memorial tablet of gunmetal, surrounding copper centre with inscription:—The City of London Imperial Volunteers | Dulce Et Decorum (C.I.V.) est pro patria Mori. | In memory of | HENRY OSCAR PALMER | a private in this regiment and gunner in the | 3rd Middlesex Volunteer Artillery eldest son | of HENRY JAMES and HARRIETT MATILDA PALMER of | this Parish. He died at Bloemfontein 27th May 1900 in | the South African Campaign, Aged 23 years.

This memorial is erected at the expense of the Regimental fund. | The Right Honourable Sir ALFRED NEWTON, Bart., Lord Mayor | 1899-1900.

A white marble tablet, with cherub above lifting a curtain:—Sacred | to the memory | of | REBECCA PHIPPS | the beloved wife of | HENRY MORETON-DYER | Esquire | of this parish | who died | on the 12th of August 1830 | and whose mortal remains | are deposited in the family vault | under this church. | To the stranger | this tablet could but feebly convey | an idea of those virtues, which, as | a Christian, a wife, mother, friend and mistress | she so eminently displayed; | but to her deeply-afflicted | husband and children, | who can never cease to mourn her loss, | and who alone derive consolation from | the blessed hope of re-union in that world | where sorrow entereth not, | the erection | of it affords a melancholy satisfaction | as a fond memorial of all | her affection, tenderness and devotion.

First window. Beneath is a brass plate inscribed:—In loving memory of EMMA wife of LOOMBE | CULHAM BROOKE who died 24th October 1876. The | Gift of her husband.

A white marble tablet with a weeping figure above:—In memory of | Mrs. MARTHA UDNY | (widow of ROBERT UDNY, formerly of Teddington, Esq.) | Sub-governess of her late royal Highness | The PRINCESS CHARLOTTE OF WALES. | In the midst of jarring interests, | she secured the respect and affection | of her royal pupil and the approbation | of his Majesty | As a daughter and a wife her conduct was an example | her virtues were without ostentation; | her mind highly cultivated & her judgement strong; | her gentleness, patience and sweetness of disposition | were evinced in a life of severe trial | devoted to the service of God and the study of His word | she was enabled through the merits | of her Redeemer | to look with hope to a blessed immortality. | She was born in 1761 and died 1st September 1831, | Aged 70 years | And lies interred in the vault of this church.

A plain white marble tablet on a grey background:—Sacred | to the memory of | ELIZABETH MARY BOOTH | who departed this life | The 26th of December | 1820, | Aged 57 years.

* Communicated by A. F. G. LEVESON GOWER, Esq.—continued from p. 259.

Sacred to the memory of | SOLOMON FRANCO, Esq^e^, | who departed this life | on the 27th day of March 1825, | aged 46 years, | and whose remains are deposited | in a vault beneath this church.

Also of his wife MARGARET FRANCES FRANCO | who died at Paris the 7th Day of February 1845, | aged 53 years.

Also of his sister SARAH FRANCO | who died the 6th August 1835, Aged 66 years.

Also of FRANCIS FRANCO, Esq., | his relative | who died on the first of February 1837, | aged 83 years.

A white marble tablet with a lamb and crook above the inscription :—Sacred | to the memory of | WILLIAM and MARTHA JOACHIM | who were many years | residents in this parish | and whose beloved remains | repose | beneath a tomb in the | burial ground on the south side | of Paddington Street.

Also MARTHA JOACHIM | spinster | daughter of the above | whose remains are deposited | in the same tomb.

A tablet inscribed :—This monument is erected | as an humble tribute of gratitude and respect | to the memory of | Sir JAMES SIBBALD, Bart. | whose remains are deposited with those of ELIZABETH | his wife in a vault in Marylebone Church-yard. | He died beloved and esteemed by all who knew him | on the 17th Septr 1819 in the 77th year of his age | after an illness of 10 years | borne with that patience and resignation | which religion alone can inspire. | His faith and humility were sincere | his charity universal | for it was benevolence to man founded upon love to God | with a firm reliance | on the all sufficient merits of our Redeemer | He hourly prayed to be a partaker of that heavenly invitation | "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the Kingdom | prepared for you from the Foundation of the World."

[Beneath this tablet is a motto, and above are two sickles and a sheaf of corn.]

Reviews.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Vol. V., Part 51. October 1901. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THE present Part keeps up its usual interest in local matters. The first article gives a good account of the drainage of the Great Level, and also how the juries were everlastingly making presentments of defaults in the cleansing of the common drains, as early as in 1563 the poor men of Whittlesey complaining of the utter undoing of at least 400 households by the "unkinde overflowings of waters." Commissioners were appointed to meet at Peterborough, and a decree was issued bearing witness to their honest endeavours to remedy the inundations around.

There is a collection of Ely early wills, commencing January 1454. All of them commence with bequests to the high altar, shewing that most of these documents were passed by one firm, The Lost Register of Sandtoft Chapel is duly announced, and the article on it may be the means of its recovery.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. No. 2, Vol. IX. October 1901. Richmond, Virginia.

ONE of the articles in the above is a list of newspapers in existence, some as early as 1789, and the present Number has twenty-nine, copies of all of which are in the Virginia Historical Library.

As in former Numbers, most of the papers refer either to the allegiance of persons to the English throne or accounts of war episodes. In one article is given all those in Henry County from its formation in 1776, who have sworn allegiance to Virginia and renounced it to Great Britain, and a good list they make of men between 21 and 63. In another article is given the diary of an American prisoner of war at Quebec in 1776. The feeling expressed is that of friendliness, as when the officer of the day was saying something irritating before the prisoners, a good-hearted countryman of his said, "You should not say anything to them that is disagreeable; they are all our brethren." The Hessians arriving was looked upon as wrong. The list of Militia in the Revolution is still continued and carried on, and in "Virginia in 1637" is given correspondence shewing prejudice to the King in Virginia at that time. There is an interesting account of "the King being satisfied of the fidelity, diligence, and circumspection of Robert Evelin, Gent.," who was the uncle of John Evelyn, the author of "Sylva." Being born in Wotton in 1606, he left with an uncle to go to America in 1634, where he was soon appointed Surveyor-General in Virginia, and became a Member of the Assembly in 1639 and 1642. His brother, Captain George Evelyn, was also a prominent man in Maryland, and had a son and a daughter, leaving many descendants. Altogether the Part is very interesting.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. XI., Parts 9 and 10, for September and October 1901. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THE September Part is fairly illustrated, and has for its frontispiece the arms of the House of Abercairny, which are strongly drawn and rather coarse. Three other Scotch arms are also given: Hamilton of Gilkerscleugh, Sinclair of Sinclair, and the Primrose arms of the Hon. Mistris Primerose in 1703, a poor sample to reproduce. A modern Scotch plate is also given, that belonging to James Grant Duncan of Wick in the county of Caithness, designed by Miss Gwladys Whittaker, whose choice drawing excels that of the French bookplate by its side. Two plates were shewn by Sir Arthur Vicars, and like most Irish bookplates, shewing collections of books on shelves, the New York Society's Library shewing Britannia giving a kneeling Indian a book, and the other a handsomely-designed temple with the Sciences depicted pellmell in the foreground with the motto "Vita brevis, Ars longa," and engraved in 1715. There is also given a very chaste plate designed by Mr. Louis Rhead, of New York, for the son of Mr. Arthur Turnure.

The October Part shews eight medical bookplates, carries on the bookplates for identification to No. 479, evidently a Dewick plate, and gives three more good coats by Fess Checquy, including that of the Duke of Queensberry. He also gives a representation of the seal of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland. The Part concludes by having a modern plate designed by Mr. Eldred for Mrs. Goodrich, and also a quaint Japanese-style plate for Miss Dorothy Furman of Long Island.

FAMILY HISTORIES.

We are glad to welcome the family histories which are printed from time to time, as they all involve immense research, are costly in the means of collecting information, and very often but empty thanks are given by relatives who ought to join in the original outlay. "The House of Hewetson or Hewson of Ireland" is a fair example of the labour necessary, when the date given as that of the family is 1498, and who were among the families which went over to Ireland in 1500. The volume is in demy octavo, illustrated by three portraits, and has two very ample pedigrees. It has been purely a labour of love for the author, Mr. John Hewetson, who only gives his portrait without any particulars of himself, although so ample is his information of those of his family.

Another similar work is that of "The History of the Family of Sherborn," also produced by the son in the midst of other pressing and diligent duties, and which he dedicates to his father, Mr. Charles William Sherborn, the well-known art engraver and armorial designer. Five of the family coats-of-arms are given, including those for 1513, 1567, 1574, and 1613, besides a modern coat designed by Mr. Sherborn for his son's book. The volume gives accounts of twenty-three families of Sherborns, among them being Robert Sherburne, Bishop of Chichester, whose arms are in Cooke's "Visitation," 1574, and Sir Nicholas Sherburn about 1694.

Both books are issued by subscription by Messrs. Mitchell and Hughes, 140 Wardour Street, from whom all particulars may be had.
